Kohoutek's Comet Visible Next Month

By MATT SPIRENG

NEW PALTZ

The relatively unspectacular beginning of an event that could later prove to be very spectacular indeed is only about a month away . . . at least for early risers.

The event: the appearance of a comet which some astronomers think might outshine the celebrated Halley's comet of 1910, offering what is usually a once-in-a-lifetime treat for people around the world.

Discovered in March of this year, the new comet is named after the West German astronomer, Lubos Kohoutek, who first sighted it streaking toward the sun through a telescope.

At present, the Kohoutek comet can not be seen with the unaided eye, but by the end of November it is expected to be visible without the use of a telescope.

At the end of next month and during the early weeks of December the comet should be visible before dawn in the western horizon, according to Dr. Richard J. Ordway, who teaches astronomy at the State University College at New Paltz. It is expected to reach its brightest state during the early weeks of January, he said.

"No one really knows how bright it's going to be," said Ordway in a recent interview with the Freeman. "It could be anywhere from interesting to smotheringly spectacular."

Explaining that most of his information about the new comet has been obtained from other scientific sources, Ordway said that if the Kohoutek comet becomes very bright it might be visible during the daylight hours.

"If it turns out to be as bright as it is hoped, it could be the only one this century that bright," Ordway said. "The most spectacular time should be the early weeks of January."

Comets are believed to be formed when a "nucleus" made of frozen gases, dust and rock particles nears the sun and the gases are warmed, forming an atmosphere around the nucleus, called the "head" of the comet, Ordway explained. The tail is formed when the solar wind (electrified particles emitted by the sun) pushes against the particles, causing them to stream out from the head in a direction away from the sun.

Ordway said comets get brighter as they near the sun because more light is reflected from the head and tail of the comet, and because it is closer to the earth, making it easier to see.

"The tail of Halley's comet spanned about 40 degrees of the sky," Ordway said. "It is thought this one (Kohoutek) might span more, or perhaps less. We can't really say."

At any event, Kohoutek comet will grow steadily larger and brighter until about December 28 when it is expected to be closest to the sun . . . and behind it. Early in January the comet will emerge from behind the sun and will become visible in the evening sky thereafter as it moves away from the sun. It is during those early weeks of January that the comet will be closest to earth.

The appearance of the comet may be marked for the first time by man's ability to observe it from beyond the earth's atmosphere. "The next Skylab crew might be able to get some very interesting information," Ordway pointed out.

Present plans call for the next Skylab launch to occur Nov. 11, enabling the crew to view the comet both on its approach toward the sun and as it recedes.

And if Kohoutek comet doesn't turn out to be as spectacular as it is hoped . . . Halley's comet is due back in 1986.

Peace-Keeping Troops Head for Mideast

By United Press International

The first troops of the U.N. peace-keeping force flew to Egypt today as Israeli charged that Egyptian forces, trying to break out of a Sinai desert trap, had launched a new armored attack in violation of the cease-fire. Prime Minister Golda Meir warned the war was not yet over.

Israel's military command also said an Israeli-run tanker struck an Egyptian mine in the Gulf of Suez today and was sinking. Two crewmen on the tanker Sirius were reported injured. The Tel Aviv command earlier had said the tanker was sunk by "Egyptian enemy action" but Egypt denied it had attacked the vessel.

In Moscow, Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev said today the Soviet Union has sent "representatives" to the Middle East to observe implementation of the cease-fire and hopes the United States will do the same.

In an address to a meeting of the World Congress of Peace Forces, Brezhnev did not make clear whether the "representatives" were troops or civilian observers.

He said Egyptian President Anwar Sadat appealed to both the United States and Soviet Union "to send to the area of military action their representatives to observe the full implementation of the cease-fire."

"We expressed our readiness to satisfy the request of Egypt and already have sent such representatives," he said. "We hope the United States will act in the same way."

In Washington, the White House said today President Nixon would consider a United Nations request to send truce observers to the Middle East, but does not believe either this country or the Soviet Union should be members of the observer force.

In Beirut, a press report said the Soviet Union was rushing sophisticated weapons to Egypt and Syria to make sure they would be ready for resumed fighting with Israel "if and when the cease-fire breaks down." Ihsan Hijazi, editor of the respected daily publication "The Arab World," cited East European diplomatic sources for his report.

Finland's Defense Ministry announced that 200 of its troops belonging to the United Nations peace contingent on the island of Cyprus flew to Egypt today for peace-keeping duties. Austrian and Swedish troops also were in the first contingent flying off to the war zone from the British Royal Air Force base at Arkotiri, Cyprus.

Already on duty in the Middle East today were the observers of the U.N. Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO) — 26 along the Egyptian-Israeli front and 31 on the Syrian-Israeli front. UNTSO sources said 14 observers were sent to the Egyptian side from Cairo and 12 were sent from the Sinai to operate on the Israeli side.

Israeli military spokesmen said Egypt's Third Army, surrounded on the east side of the Suez Canal, appeared to be crumbling, with hundreds of its 20,000 men surrendering to Israeli troops who have cut them off from food, water and munitions on mainland Egypt.

An Israeli spokesman said the beleaguered Egyptian army launched a tank and artillery attack at 9 a.m. and later tried to throw a bridge across the canal toward home but were repulsed by Israeli guns and warplanes.

The Israeli troops on the Egyptian side of the canal are part of a bulge into Egypt which the Israelis say encompasses more than 500 square miles of land, some of it only 37 miles from Cairo.

The decision to send the U.N. peace-keeping force to the Middle East cooled a possible superpower confrontation that sent a wave of jitters across the United States and major capitals of the world.

State officials, who say the last word they got from Kleven indicated an early December reopening of the bridge which has been shut down since July 9, contend that the delays are solely the responsibility of the contractor.

Speaking of the penalties, a DOT spokesman from Albany said, "There are many other cases where we waive the penalties, but this is not the case here. We regret the delays. We realize this is an important project and we will do everything we can to expedite the work."

A spokesman for the contractor, however, charges that the delays are the responsibility of the state. "They never made a proper survey of the bridge to start with to determine the work that had to be done," a spokesman for Kleven said. He said that when the old deck was removed additional areas of deterioration were encountered.

The state and Kleven are also at odds as to the contract period. Both agree it is four months, but while the state contends the contract period began on June 25, Kleven now says it was "mutually agreed" that it would begin on July 9 and end on Nov. 10. The spokesman for Kleven says the firm isn't go-

U.S. Commitment... Many Here Say 'No'

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
"If the Russians send troops to the Mideast to police the cease-fire between the Arabs and the Israelis, should the United States also commit its forces?"

The question was posed yesterday at a time when the United States had put its armed forces on alert in anticipation of possible Russian moves into the Mideast.

That question was directed at a number of Ulster County residents and the answer, for the most part, was an unequivocal "no."

"Heavens, no," said Mrs. Angela White of Sawkill. "I don't think so. We just got through with one war. The boys just got home."

The equation between Vietnam and the Mideast war as "foreign wars" was drawn by several persons.

"We had our lesson in Vietnam," said Richard Trareach of Stone Ridge. "We have no business being there (in the Mideast), either."

Still, not all were opposed to American intervention, with reservations. "If the Russians are going to send in troops, we've got to watch the Russians," said John Spada of 254 Hasbrouck Avenue. "I say it's tit for tat. We're involved anyway, aren't we? We might as well be involved in policing the place. It's better than fighting."

Rita Bracee of 161 O'Neil Street offered similar sentiments. "We should send them in if the Russians send them in," she said.

Mary Buddenhagen of 12 Mrs. Avenue agreed with Mrs. Bracee and Spada. "Sure," she said, "because I don't think they should let the communists overrun the world over there." But then, Mrs. Buddenhagen added, "We should only send our troops if the Russians send theirs. I don't think we should be over there either if they're not there."

Max Ungerer of New Paltz took a more middle of the road course. "I don't think we should send troops in," he said. "Naturally, it all depends on how many they send in. Maybe we should have learned our lesson in Vietnam. I think the UN should have worked something out. I don't think there is an emergency."

Frank Adams of 82 Crane Street took a similar position. "If the troops are there just as a police action, I'd say, yeah, but not to pick sides, not to fight. I don't think the American people could stand the psychological shock of another war. We've gone through too much with Vietnam."

Harry Fertel of 95 West Chestnut Street was against the commitment of U.S. Forces. "I would be definitely opposed to any commitment of American troops in the Mideast," he said. "They should keep the balance of power there. I don't think Israel wants any troops. All they want is the support of the United States. I think they can manage very well."

Time for a Change to Standard Hours

Remembering that hour she lost when Daylight Saving Time arrived in the spring, five-year-old Lisa Ann Brandt prepares to get it back when Standard Time returns this weekend. The dark-eyed miss is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brandt Jr. of 35 Abbey Street. Area residents will emulate Lisa's clock watching when they turn back an hour. Official return to Eastern Standard Time is 2 a.m. Sunday. (Freeman photo by Haines)

New Watergate Prosecutor Is Urged on President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was placed after Cox was fired last week.

But he conceded that "the measure would create a special prosecution force headed by someone to be named by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica."

Another GOP member of the Watergate committee, Sen. Edward J. Gurney of Florida, the President's strongest defender on the sever-man panel, said he made a mistake last week in applauding the firing of Cox and urged Nixon to name former Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson to Cox's post.

Richardson resigned from the Justice Department rather than carry out a presidential order to fire the man he had chosen as special prosecutor.

Meanwhile, Cox's lieutenants and the new head of the Watergate prosecution asked a federal judge to order the FBI and other government agencies to stay away from the voluminous files developed by the special prosecutor before Cox's dismissal.

In other developments: — It was learned that Nixon's one-time personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach, has told investigators he probably relayed word to Laird's predecessor at the White House, John D. Ehrlichman, about a secret $100,000 cash gift from billionaire Howard Hughes to Rebozo.

An informed source said Kalmbach believes he told Ehrlichman in mid-1972, at least six months before Nixon acknowledged hearing about the controversial money.

Rebozo is reported to have told investigators he thought the money he received in 1979 and 1970 was a campaign contribution. The White House says he kept it for three years and gave it back after the 1972 election.

Rondout Bridge Delay

$600-a-Day Penalty Is Invoked

KINGSTON
The State Transportation Department has invoked a $600 a day penalty clause against Kleven Construction Inc. of Dobbs Ferry for failure to complete work and reopen the Rondout Creek Bridge on Oct. 25, the contracted date, according to the state.

State officials, who say the last word they got from Kleven indicated an early December reopening of the bridge which has been shut down since July 9, contend that the delays are solely the responsibility of the contractor.

Speaking of the penalties, a DOT spokesman from Albany said, "There are many other cases where we waive the penalties, but this is not the case here. We regret the delays. We realize this is an important

YOUNG AMERICAN AWARD — The first Young American Award winner of the current youth recognition program received honors at a dinner Thursday night at the Kirkland Hotel. Taking part in the presentation were (L-R) Dr. Cary E. Wood, secondary principal, Ellenville Central Schools, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Van Aken and daughter Shirley who received the certificate from Max Shoff, manager of the local Montgomery Ward store, sponsor of the program. Shirley, a senior at Ellenville High School was selected for her top scholastic record, school and community activities. The Young American Award program is carried out throughout the school year with monthly recognition going to area high school seniors. Preschool Workshop Is Planned

POUGHKEEPSIE college's continuing education office and the nursery education program, the four Thursday evening meetings will provide parents, teachers, aides, volunteers and others working with preschoolers with an understanding of the approaches to

Offered as a community service under the auspices of the standing of the approaches to early childhood education.

The seminar is the second unit in a credit free series entitled "How to Know and Enjoy Your Preschool Child." The first unit on play activities and equipment is not a prerequisite.

Included in the seminar on selecting a preschool program will be morning visits of a variety of preschool programs in Dutchess County including private, church affiliated, parent cooperatives, day care centers, Montessori, and college laboratory nursery schools.

Coordinating the seminar will be Mrs. Esther Kiviat, a consultant in early childhood education and director of Jug Hill, a summer program for preschoolers. She is a former assistant professor of nursery education at the college.

Fee for the entire series of four evening meetings and visits to nursery schools is $4.50 per person. Persons may register by contacting the college's Office of Continuing Education.

Legislator Answers Charges

ROSENDALE to confuse the issues and if my colleague agrees to do defeating his resolutions," Klein County Legislator, Louis M. Klein, (D-Dist. 7 Rosendale-Esopus) today issued a sharp response to charges of his Republican opponent Legislator Glenn Debrosky (R-Dist. 7) that he, Klein, was unwilling to run on his record, challenging Debrosky to a public debate on their respective records.

Klein said, "For two months I have been actively campaigning for re-election basing my campaign on my record of accomplishment and the basic issues confronting my district, one of which is the lack of responsive leadership being afforded by the majority party and our local representative of the majority party. Apparently, the truth must have stung this majority party legislator from the Town of Rosendale, for in keeping with the Halloween spirit he now appears to have visions of ghosts and goblins pursuing him and his broomstick (his legislative record) to defeat.

"His fear of his record is justified," Klein continued. "It is a record of negativism and failure. In order to shield this record from the voters, he chooses to engage in malicious, unprovoked personal attacks and will discuss proposed legislation totally unrelated to the legislative campaign. He chooses to mislead the public by resorting to outright lies," he said.

"Debrosky charges that I voted myself a $2,000 raise," Keln said. "This is a downright lie. If my learned colleague bothered to devote his time and attention to his legislative duties instead of flag-waving he'd know that the issue never even came to a vote. I am not a legislator for the salary it pays. My interest is solely to provide dedicated representation to my district. I challenge Debrosky's sincerity by offering to donate my entire legislative salary to a worthwhile charity next year, his fellow legislators from Debrosky," Klein concluded.

Although he professes to have led a taxpayers revolt against the budget, Debrosky sat mute at an executive session of the legislature whereat the budget was discussed," Klein claimed. "He never voiced opposition to the budget or these raises at the hearing. I challenge him to produce any legislator who will state otherwise. His opposition to the raises and budget apparently arose when the Conservative Party came out against them. The following day so did his fellow legislators from Debrosky," Klein concluded.

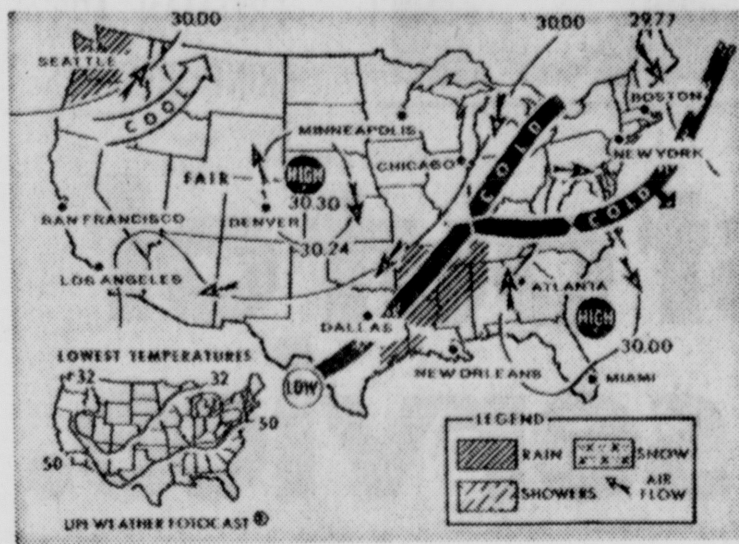

Bell to Address Seminar

WOODSTOCK Bell said he is studying in the orderly process of the depth proposed legislation which would require lobbyists, with the exception of those working for municipalities and public bodies, to register with the Assembly and Senate before submitting monthly financial statements with the Secretary of State.

Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (R-101st Dist.) will speak on Legislative Decision Making at the State Level when he addresses a seminar sponsored by the Robert A. Taft Institute of Government at the State University at New Paltz on Saturday, Oct. 27, at 9 a.m.

Bell will include in his presentation the effect that lobbyists and lobbying groups have on the legislative process and will discuss proposed legislation calling for basic reforms in the practice.

The Taft Institute, on whose behalf Bell has spoken before, was founded in 1961 by the Robert A. Taft Memorial Foundation and is chartered by the Board of Regents of the State of New York. In honoring the memory of the late U.S. Senator from Ohio, it strives to increase the public's understanding of the meaning of a free society, and the forms and principles of government which can best preserve and advance that society.

For Period Ending 7 a. m. EST Saturday

Tonight, rain is expected over the Pacific Northwest and across parts of the lower Plains and Tennessee valley. Elsewhere, mostly fair weather should prevail. Minimum temperatures include: (approximate maximum readings in parentheses) Atlanta 51 (75), Boston 45 (63), Chicago 41 (61), Dallas 53 (73), Denver 28 (61), Jacksonville 58 (85), Kansas City 43 (62), Los Angeles 56 (73), Miami 69 (85), New Orleans 58 (81), New York City 50 (66), Phoenix 51 (86), San Francisco 49 (68), Seattle 40 (62), St. Louis 43 (64), Washington 49 (70).

Ulster Town Sewer Hook-Up Nov. 1

By LYNN MULVANEY
TOWN OF ULSTER
All Town of Ulster homeowners whose properties are ready to be tied into the new sewer system may make the hook-up as of Nov. 1, Supervisor Carmine Sabino announced at a press conference today.

Sabino said the town board "will not rest until the entire sewer system is completed" and emphasized that only those people who reside within the sewer improvement area will have to pay for the sewers. The Republican candidate for reelection announced that a new contract has been awarded to Carl Simone of Norwich to complete a prior contract started by Site Con. The first areas in which work will be done will be Sunset Park and Forest Glen Park. "The necessary repairs and corrections will be made so these people will be able to hook up at the earliest possible moment," Sabino said.

Previously, Site Con walked off the job in June and the town is presently bringing suit against the company. Sabino stressed that the Simone firm has been thoroughly investigated and meets all the qualifications set by the state including bonding and ability to perform.

Sabino also seized the occasion to refute allegations made in recent weeks by one of his opponents, Independent candidate Robert Stedje who reportedly alleged that voters were "sheep" because they were "afraid" to vote for other than Republican candidates in the town.

Sabino said that such a statement indicates a "distinct lack of respect on Stedje's part for the intelligence of the voters."

"My only bosses are the residents of the town," he said adding that during his terms as supervisor, "there have been no reprisals in any form to anyone for the way he or she votes."

Regarding Stedje's reported statement that he would withdraw from the supervisor race if Sabino could prove to him that work would begin on the widening of Ulster Avenue Mail, Sabino countered saying "it was an astounding statement."

Schuler added that "I am sorry to say I cannot give you a timetable for the construction." He assured Sabino however that work on the design will begin "immediately."

Ford, UAW Reach Agreement

DETROIT (AP) — Ford and the United Auto Workers reached tentative agreement today on a new national contract for 185,000 workers, according to a spokesman for Ford Local 1250 in Cleveland, Ohio.

The spokesman said the agreement includes retirement after 25 years with full benefits for foundry workers.

The spokesman said he got the word from the local president, who is on the national bargaining team.

The reported agreement came in the face of a 10 a.m. EIT strike deadline.

A union source said Thursday negotiators were close to an agreement on every major point with the exception of the UAW's demand to limit forced overtime.

That apparently meant the bargainers had disposed of another issue which had been a major stumbling block earlier in the week — the union's demand for early retirement for Ford's 9,000 foundry workers.

Bargaining has been under way at Ford World Headquarters since July 17. Both sides imposed a total news blackout earlier this week after the union set the strike deadline.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock sent telegrams to all Ford UAW locals Thursday ordering them to remain at work today if a national agreement is reached.

He said the union would then set individual strike deadlines for settlement of local issues, as it has done at Chrysler Corp.

The UAW is attempting to get Ford to agree to a settlement similar to the one it won after a nine-day strike against Chrysler last month.

The three-year pact with Chrysler includes a provision limiting overtime work to one hour a day and giving workers every Sunday and every third Saturday off.

Economic elements of that agreement include a 3 per cent wage increase each year, a full pension for workers retiring after 30 years of service, improvements in annual cost-of-living wage adjustments and creation of a company-subsidized dental plan.

Ford says its UAW-represented employees at 97 bargaining units in 28 states earn an average of $5.70 an hour and have been making an average of $248 a week this year, including overtime pay.

The last three-year contract at Ford expired Sept. 14 but was extended with the provision it could be canceled on 72 hours notice. The UAW told Ford on Monday the agreement would run out today.

The UAW also has an agreement for an indefinite contract extension with General Motors Corp., where negotiations for a new pact covering 400,000 union members have been on the back burner during talks at Chrysler and Ford.

Progress Report Given On New BOCES Building

NEW PALTZ
Ulster County BOCES heard a progress report Thursday night on construction plans for its new 35,000 square foot occupational center in Bloomington.

The facility will be built on a fifteen-acre parcel of land (the former LeFever property in the Town of Rosendale) on the West side of Route 32 (between Route 32 and the New York State Thruway). Previously, BOCES had considered property on the east side of Route 32 on what is now the LeFever golf driving range.

Dr. Jack L. Roosa, executive director of BOCES, said an application has been filed with the Rosendale Town Board for a zoning change to permit construction of the building. Necessary applications, he added, also have been filed with the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

The property has been purchased by John Shults of Kingston, who will construct the building and then rent it to BOCES for a five-year period at approximately $150,000 a year. BOCES will have a five-year renewal option in its lease.

The building will replace two other BOCES structures that are rented for $80,000 annually. BOCES is anticipating a September, 1974 occupation provided necessary zoning and environmental applications are approved.

The agreement to rent the building was approved at September's BOCES meeting.

In other action, BOCES heard a report from Alan Hilliard, director of special education, on the staffing, pupils and programs of the BOCES special education program for handicapped children.

In personnel action, the board granted a permanent appointment to Mrs. Anneke Arnold as a special education teacher effective Jan. 2, 1974. The board also accepted the resignation of Walter Jones, a guidance counselor, who has accepted a position with the Albany County BOCES.

The board also discussed various resolutions that will be proposed at the New York State School Boards Association that begins Sunday in Syracuse.

BOCES will next meet on November 15. The board's regularly scheduled fourth Thursday meeting date would have fallen on Thanksgiving.

GMC Reports Record Profits

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp., the nation's largest auto maker, has reported record third quarter profits of $267 million, or 92 cents a share, and record sales of $7.6 billion.

GM's earnings for the third quarter more than doubled last year's figure and contrasted sharply with the third quarter reports of the Chrysler Corp. and the Ford Motor Co.

Last year, GM said it earned $122 million, or 41 cents a share, in the third quarter. Its sales for the same period tallied $5.3 billion.

Unit sales climbed 36 per cent, from 1.28 million cars to 1.75 million, GM said.

LEOPOLD CHOUINARD

A Silent, Painful Battle

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP) — A Long Lake bush pilot has won a temporary restraining order against enforcement of a ban to prohibit landing seaplanes in the Adirondacks.

Supreme Court Justice Edmund L. Shea granted the order Wednesday pending further proceedings on Herbert Helms' injunction petition.

The ban, effective July 1, 1973, was issued by Henry L. Diamond, environmental conservation commissioner, and restricted the landing of seaplanes on about 700 Adirondack wilderness lakes and ponds.

Judge Shea noted that should the restraining order be lifted, Helms, who operates an air charter and taxi service, may pick up any passengers he might have left in the wilderness.

Helms, who has been in the charter business for 27 years, was honored by the Federal Aviation Administration last year for numerous search, rescue and mercy missions.

An attorney representing Helms said the hearing unless the commissioner's order is lifted Helms will suffer irreparable financial harm and loss of reputation.

The ruling was handed down after arguments were voiced by Atty. A. Anthony Kelsey of New York City, representing Helms, and Asst. Atty. Gen. Murray Suswein representing Diamond and the department.

Helms grossed $31,000 last year, Kelsey said. And $15,000 of the money came from flights to lakes, many of them now closed to aircraft, he said.

The ban went into effect under the Adirondack Park Agency Law.

Pilot Wins Sea Plane Court Order

BOSTON (UPI) — For three months, Leopold Chouinard has been waging a private, silent fight against pain and sometimes agony.

Chouinard, 20, an Air Force sergeant from Marshfield, Vt., was the only survivor of the 89 persons aboard a Delta DC9 jetliner that crashed July 31 at Logan Airport. Eighty per cent of his body was covered with third degree burns and both of his legs were amputated. His condition still is listed as critical.

Spokesmen for Massachusetts General Hospital said Chouinard has had a number of things going for him, including his own courage and will to live. Throughout his ordeal, he has had:

—Unwavering loyalty from his fiancée, Brenda Newton, 19, who said after the accident: "I love him. I can take care of him forever." She visits her fiancé regularly. The visits are private, and she has declined to discuss Chouinard's case with newsmen.

—The day-to-day loyalty of his parents, who also shield Miss Newton from public attention.

—The exceptional treatment facilities of the Massachusetts General Hospital burn center.

—His own will power which has enabled him to endure tortuously slow treatment, including skin grafts.

A hospital spokesman described Chouinard's adjustment as "remarkable."

For the first several weeks of his treatment, the former Air Force chaplain's aide had to lie on his back as skin grafting began. Because so little skin could be grafted, layers of skin were separated and then harvested again to cover the most critically burned areas.

Doctors said skin also was stretched in the grafting process to make it possible to cover as much of the surface as possible.

Throughout the process, Chouinard has remained cheerful and cooperative, hospital aides said.

Progress is being made in grafting, despite the ever present danger of infection.

One source says it will take another two months or more to complete the grafting of skin to his back.

If that succeeds, hospital officials are hopeful Chouinard finally can be removed from the critical list.

Labor and the Democrats

Senators Henry Jackson and Edward Kennedy, prospective Democratic candidates, were welcomed at organized labor's convention in Bal Harbour, Fla., last week, but the split between labor and the Democratic party is still wide and deep. Both sides are working to heal the breach that helped create the party's worst disaster last year, but both are still far apart on causes and cures.

For instance, labor feels that National Democratic Party Chairman Robert L. Strauss did not correct things when he agreed to drop the quota system and instead replaced it with a delegate selection commission that, to labor, still is a "stacked deck" against them.

Committee officials say that labor is inflexible and aggressive in asserting its demands, and that it does not compromise on important issues; that it wants a controlled convention in 1976, not realizing that after 1972 there can no longer be a controlled convention.

Furthermore, there is a split inside labor itself. Besides the big unions outside the AFL-CIO — the teamsters, the autoworkers and most of the rail unions — there is a faction close to the reform element within the party. They include Joseph Beirne, head of the Communications workers, and Floyd Smith of the Machinists.

Alexander Barkan, director of the Committee on Political Education, the federation's political arm, coordinates and speaks for the official federation position in party councils. He says he is seeking to build a labor caucus within the national committee, through the 13 labor leaders on the national committee.

To an outsider, this all seems to be maneuvering for advantage. Labor had its lesson in 1972, with the nomination of Senator George McGovern by the Democrats, over their objections, and of Richard Nixon by the Republicans, with their neutrality. They want no more of either. If they can't get their man, they may concentrate on Congress, where they did have considerable success.

Reducing Air Flights

Several major airlines have been pressing, over the last three years, for Civil Aviation Board approval of joint flight cutbacks because of excess seating capacity, but what they failed to get for economic reasons they may get because of the mandatory jet fuel rationing announced by the White House.

American, Trans World and United will negotiate mutual flight reduction on 25 air routes across the country. Unilateral flight cutbacks are also likely because of the fuel allocation program, after a meeting of 30 airlines in Washington on the fuel situation.

For travelers, the result of such cutbacks could be a marked reduction in the frequency of available flights between different cities and increased difficulty in getting on some flights.

The fuel shortage has begun to hurt. Passenger air travel is almost universal in this country and anything that upsets it strikes at our new way of commercial life.

Perhaps it will shift some travel to Amtrak, the quasi-public passenger railroad system. That could be a good thing, because rail travel is getting more comfortable and more convenient.

Once fuel for automobiles is drastically reduced, then air and rail both may be called on for their full capacity.

WALLACE TO DEMOCRATS — Alabama Governor George C. Wallace told the Future Farmers of America in Kansas City, "Unless the Democratic Party moves from the exotic left to an area where there is the great mass of our citizens, the party will never be successful in a presidential election."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Now that Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox has been removed, the true test of the Justice Department's credibility will be its handling of the investigation into the strange finances of President Nixon's friend Bebe Rebozo.

Sources close to Cox tell us the special prosecutors had received reports, still unsubstantiated, that Rebozo was the President's bagman.

This much has been established: Rebozo accepted a $100,000 cash gift from billionaire Howard Hughes and stashed it in a safety deposit box. The money was delivered in $100 bills, $50,000 at a time, in 1969 and 1970. The Hughes aide who made the delivery, Richard Danner, has sworn the money was intended as a contribution for the 1970 congressional campaign. Yet not only did Rebozo have no authority to collect campaign funds but he never turned over the $100,000 to any campaign committee. He told investigators that he returned the cash after keeping it for three years.

DISTURBED NATION

The special prosecutors were investigating whether Rebozo had collected other cash contributions for Nixon. Word reached them, directly, say our sources, that the President was disturbed over their interest in Rebozo. They suspect the President may have fired Cox more to head off the Rebozo investigations than to withhold the Watergate tapes. Their suspicion has been bolstered by the President's release of the tapes only three days after Cox was sacked.

My associate Les Whitten rushed over to the prosecutors' office immediately after Cox's dismissal. Barely one step ahead of the FBI, he obtained only one document before agents sealed the offices and refused to let the prosecutors remove even pictures of their wives and children. This interesting document was a library check-off list, which showed what the prosecutors were researching.

They were checking, for example, into the government's access to financial records. In one earmarked case, the courts ruled that a taxpayer could not block the Internal Revenue Service from examining his bank records. This could have been preparation for a showdown over the Rebozo records. They expected to encounter resistance if they pushed the investigation.

DAIRY DOLLARS

The library document also shows that James Quarles, a Cox assistant and a specialist in campaign funds, was searching through three law books for cases dealing with campaign funds.

The dairy industry, for example, offered to raise $2 million for President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign. On March 23, 1971, the President met personally at the White House with a dairy delegation. Two days later, the White House ordered the Agriculture Department, over Secretary Clifford Hardin's objection, to increase dairy subsidies.

The special prosecutors questioned the President's personal attorney, Herbert Kalmbach, who told them he opposed making any promise to the dairy people in return for campaign funds.

The library document shows that Archibald Cox was doing his own homework. Twice in the last few days, he checked out law books on federal precedents. The Watergate prosecutors were digging through their law books, in particular, for precedents on how to handle President Nixon's defiance of their subpoenas.

'47 CONVICTION

Among the cases we found earmarked in their law library was a 1947 conviction of Communist party official Eugene Dennis for failing to respond to a subpoena. He had defied the old House Un-American Activities Committee which tried to subpoena his records. Joining the outcry against Dennis, ironically, was a young member of the committee named Richard Nixon.

In addition to the Dennis case, the prosecutors apparently were studying how to pry loose information that the government doesn't want to divulge. In one law book, a chapter was earmarked entitled, "Discovery from the Government; Government Privilege." The chapter began: "Special problems are raised by the application of the discovery rule in actions to which the government is a party."

Cox's executive assistant, Peter Kreindler, also checked out a book giving the procedures for answering a Supreme Court appeal. The prosecutors evidently expected the President to ask the Supreme Court to overrule the appeals court, which upheld Judge John Sirica's demand to hear the controversial Watergate tapes.

The original Justice Department prosecutors served a subpoena upon the President demanding Watergate documents, news summaries and other material from White House files. The President's counsel, Fred Buzhardt, responded immediately with a request for more time.

TRIED NEGOTIATING

Cox took over the prosecution before any papers could be delivered. Rather than use the subpoena, Cox at first tried to negotiate with the White House for the desired documents. Not until the negotiations broke down did he resort to a subpoena.

Interesting sidelight: A 1970 Supreme Court ruling declares that subpoenas "shall be issued in the name of the President." This ruling is still the law of the land, although some courts now issue grand jury subpoenas.

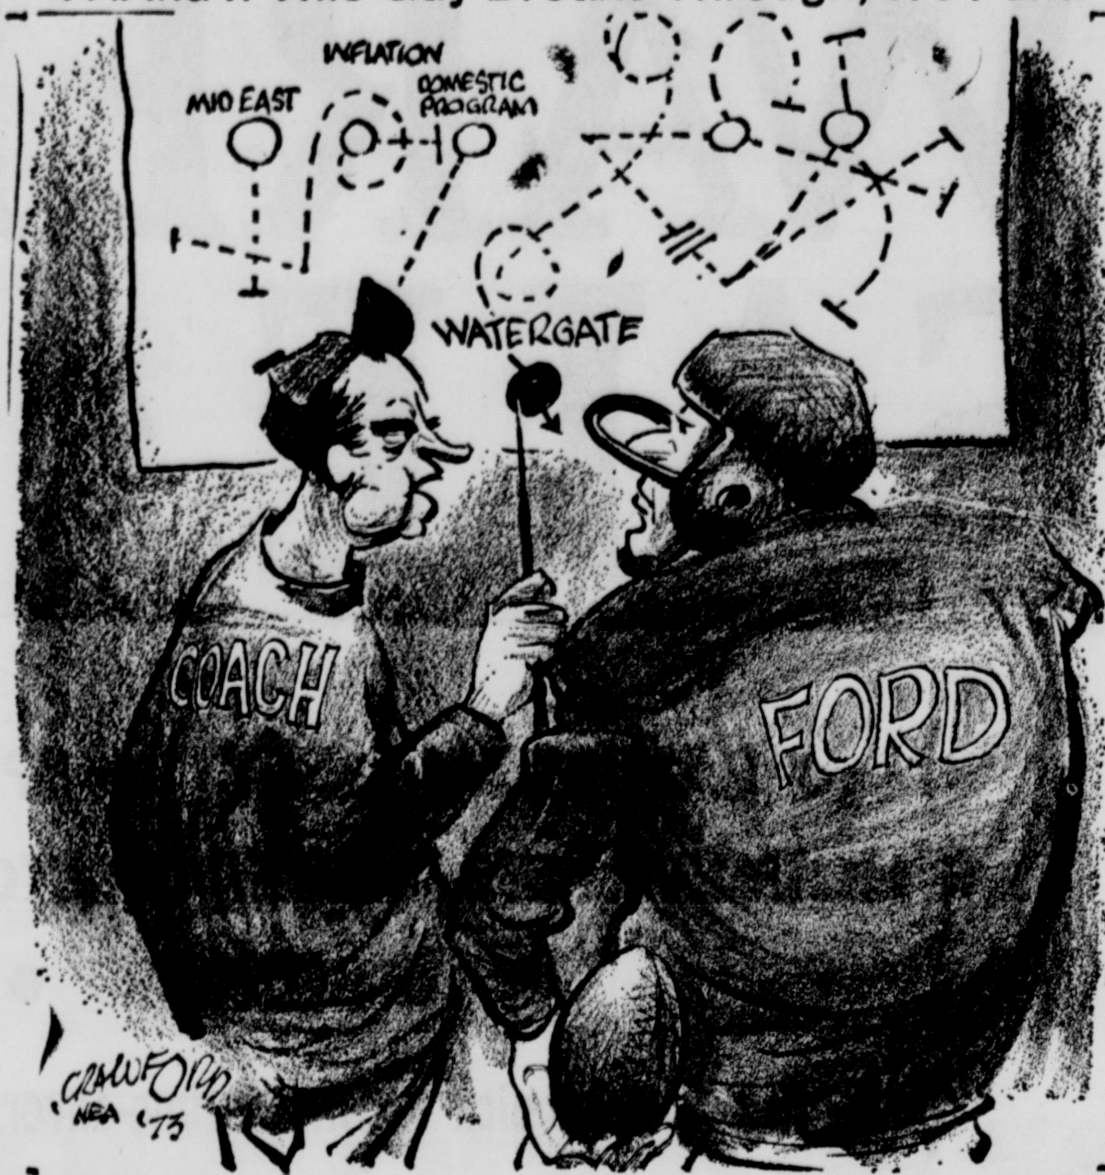

It would have been somewhat awkward for a subpoena to have been issued to Richard Nixon in the name of the President. He was served, instead, with a simple grand jury subpoena which, technically, violates the Supreme Court order.

What will happen to the special prosecutors' investigation still remains uncertain.

Cox Was Ferreting Campaign $$$$

"...And If This Guy Breaks Through, We Punt!"

Inside Report

The Move Backfired

By ROWLAND EVANS
and
ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Contributing to the deepening crisis here is the widespread belief, both in Congress and within the Nixon administration itself, that President Nixon fired Archibald Cox as special prosecutor because he was getting too close to unpleasant truths.

That encourages bipartisan support in Congress, including backing from some Republican leaders, for legislation requiring a new independent prosecutor of the Watergate affair. Simultaneously, Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen, now in charge of the case, is under intense pressure to follow investigative trials begun by Cox. To block the legislation or harness Petersen would subject Mr. Nixon to new charges of cover-up.

Thus, the President has miscalculated in his lightning thrusts last weekend. Well aware of congressional reluctance to impeach a President (which remains basically unchanged), he felt he could get rid of Cox and the White House tapes controversy in one move with impunity. But instead of putting Watergate behind him, the scandal is spotlighted more than ever.

Last weekend's stunning developments actually originated in Mr. Nixon's deep regret, encouraged by aides who share his hard-line political style, that he had agreed to Prof. Cox's selection under duress last spring.

Those aides considered Cox a liberal Kennedy Democrat with a dagger at Mr. Nixon's throat. Even presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird, a voice of moderation at the White House, regarded Cox's appointment as incredibly bad politics.

This revulsion with Cox began boiling over about ten days ago when Mr. Nixon instructed Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson to offer a compromise on the surreptitious White House tape recordings that Cox could never accept. In the upper reaches of the Justice Department, this was immediately recognized as a ploy to conclude the tapes question while purging Cox and his whole operation. That it would also drive such independent voices as Richardson and Deputy Atty. Gen. William Ruckelshaus out of government was viewed as and added bonus by White House hard-liners.

High-ranking Justice Department officials believe that the special prosecutor's office, though run by Kennedy Democrats, was in no way embarked on a vendetta against the President. Rather one high-ranking Justice Department official suspects the White House feared "Cox was doing too good a job." Indeed, some lawyers in Cox's office had hinted they were close to startling breakthroughs.

Cox's departure provides grim satisfaction in itself at the White House. "That arrogant s.o.b. Cox had this whole little Kennedy fiefdom, and now he doesn't have it anymore," one presidential aide told us.

But expectations that much more than Cox would be eliminated were dying before the weekend ended. Mr. Nixon clearly expected Cox's dismissal would be followed by resignations of his top staff. Instead, White House aides were stunned Sunday afternoon when Cox's press spokesman, James Doyle, announced the Cox operation was staying intact to bring Watergate's wrongdoers to justice.

That intensifies pressure on Petersen in resuming prosecution of Watergate. Inheriting Cox's army, he faces instant public protests if he changes direction. In fact, Justice Department colleagues feel Petersen may be even tougher than Cox in trying to redeem his reputation as a career civil servant, somewhat tarnished by the early Watergate investigation.

Moreover, the White House strategy of aligning Congress against Cox has failed. After Cox predictably turned down summaries of the tapes, the White House last Friday unilaterally offered the same deal to Sens. Sam Ervin and Howard Baker of the Watergate investigating committee without mentioning negotiations with the special prosecutor. Once the Senators accepted, the White House immediately, and incorrectly, described this as a congressional-presidential compromise with Archie Cox as the only dissenter.

This mishap of reality has been widely rejected in Congress. There is bipartisan feeling in the Senate that the summary dismissal of Cox insulted a Senate which had forced creation of the special prosecutor's office. Consequently, the Senate must legislate a new special prosecutor to retain any self-respect.

Finally, Republican Congressmen returning from the long weekend gave glum reports to presidential aides checking constituent reaction. Many told the White House that voters who previously thought Congress was harassing the President now felt Mr. Nixon had unnecessarily provoked a new crisis — exactly opposite to what the President anticipated.

But these miscalculations have not chastened the White House. There is now a satisfaction there that Richard M. Nixon is playing the hard-nosed politics he knows and likes best even if it has magnified rather than diminished preoccupation with Watergate and further divided the country, Congress and even his own party against him.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I wish I hadn't seen you, you stupid UFO — now, everybody will think I've gone bananas!"

Learning a Lesson From Suzy

Suzy was an old stray. Ugly, unwanted, unloved. She was an off-white English bulldog with an indented face that appeared to be the result of a collision with a brick wall. Her teeth were broken. There were round sad eyes, a tip of pink tongue edging from a prognathous mouth, bowed legs and a little corkscrew tail that had the effect of making her look friendly at one end and dangerous at the other.

I took her home. She had a bowl of milk and corn flakes. Then she sat in the kitchen, the eyes timidly saying "Help me." Our male dog studied Suzy from a distance, then approached stiff-legged. Suzy flicked her tongue up the side of his jaw. She was old enough to be his grandmother.

A month later, Suzy's body began to swell. It could have been a renal infection, edema, anything. We heard no complaint. Whoever owned Suzy originally must have given her a good kicking around because, when she saw feet, she hid under the kitchen sink.

We took her to Dr. Robert Shomer. He peeled her eyelids back, put her on a polished steel table, examined her recessed nostrils, took her temperature, and felt her stomach.

She didn't like it. Her haunches quivered; her breathing was loud. "Old," Shomer said, frowning. "An old dog," Suzy tried to jump from the table. Shomer grabbed her quickly, and set her gently on the floor. "No jumping for you, mother," he said.

The family went into panic. If there was one thing that Suzy didn't need more than any other, it was a husband. A dog who courted her would have to be blind. Among other things.

The dilemma was that we could read the dog books, but Suzy couldn't.

She spent her time resting, dozing, breathing. She would approach only when called. The corkscrew tail flapped from right to left. The old lady was in deep trouble. She had listened to the blandishments of some traveling cad who told her, "You're only as old as you feel."

Between the kitchen and the back door was a 6'x6' cupboard. Virginia Lee, our resident dog expert, advised us to place a lot of Sunday newspapers in the cupboard, close the door, and allow the old lady to handle the problem. "Give her instincts a chance," she begged.

When Suzy went into labor, we sent our German shepherd to a kennel. Stupid were his "why-blame-me" expression. Gently, Suzy was led to the pile of newspapers. She was petted, loved, and told not to worry. The cupboard door had a glass window with a filmy curtain.

We peeked. She was lying down, panting hard. The women were in a sweat. One grandmother prayed for Suzy. Two younger ones snapped at each other. Suzy's busted teeth tore the pages of newspapers into shoelace lengths.

She was slow, deliberate. She made two piles. The thin strips became fluffy. At 2:06 p.m., she had her first baby. It was difficult for her to reach back, but she managed to break the umbilical cord with those impossible teeth.

The little wet ball of nothing was moved to her head. She flipped it on its back and licked its stomach from the bottom toward the chest. We were all peeking. The infant squeaked. Suzy opened her huge mouth, took it by the head, and placed it on a pile of shredded paper.

Soon the second one arrived. And the third. The fourth. Fifth. At dinner time, Suzy was exhausted. She licked the stomach of the fifth baby several times, sniffed carefully, and found no life. She took it in her mouth and placed it on the second pile of newspapers.

Then we realized that she was separating the living from the stillborn. The following morning, Suzy was still having babies. Nine were alive; four were stillborn. She sniffed the dead one more, then rolled on her side and fed the living.

We got a huge cardboard box and cut one side from it. We fitted the bottom with old towels and garments. Suzy was coaxed into it. Then her nine were placed beside her. Gayle and I buried the other four.

The old lady turned out to be a great mother. She fed them all, nuzzling the timid ones closer. When she was tired, she slept on her stomach and closed the cafeteria.

She brought them up to obey. When she growled, they ran. The time came to give her away, and all her children. I felt like a traitor. Suzy had taught me more than I taught her.

Decision Expected on Nov. 10 Planned Skylab Mission

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Engineers were evaluating the results of "integrity" tests being drained out. The dome-shaped tops of the big aluminum tanks snapped back into shape Thursday night after kerosene and helium gas were used to pressurize them. Officials wanted to make sure there was no structural damage to the tanks before proceeding with the planned Nov. 10 launch of rookie astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue on at least a two-month orbital research flight. The mission, the last of the Skylab series, is expected to last at least 60 days, but NASA officials are waiting until a firm launch date is set to say if it might be as long as 84 days. The vacuum that caused the problem formed when a plastic conducted on the launch pad was run at the Marshall Space Flight Center's Michoud, Miss., plant, where the first stage of the 224-foot tall Saturn IB was made. From another part of the spaceport, the 10th and last in a series of Explorer spacecraft soared toward an earth orbital path halfway to the moon in an effort to add more knowledge about earth's upper atmosphere. IMP-J, for Interplanetary Monitoring Platform, headed first into an elongated 122 by 147,000 mile high orbit, propelled by a Delta 98 rocket that left a fiery trail through the night sky as it was launched. If all the satellite's systems are working well by Saturday, an onboard motor will thrust it into a 119,770 by 145,950 mile high orbit. To be called Explorer 50 after it achieves orbit, the satellite will have almost the same path through space as a sister spacecraft, and together they will send back further data on the magnetosphere, where solar gases, radiation and magnetic forces interact.

Nobel Winner to Sue FDA on Vitamin Regulations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Linus Pauling, twice a Nobel prize winner, plans to sue the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to stop regulations which he says could raise the price of vitamins and discourage Americans from taking them.

Pauling's criticism was the latest development in a controversy which has triggered at least 10 other court suits against the FDA and prompted two days of congressional hearings next week on legislation to sidetrack the agency's proposal.

The FDA regulations, scheduled to become effective on Jan. 1, 1975, would classify as a drug any food, vitamin or food supplement containing more than three times the recommended daily allowance of any one vitamin. Once classified as a drug, such high concentration doses of vitamins could be later placed on a prescription-only basis if an FDA review so determined.

Pauling, who won the Nobel Prize for Chemistry in 1954 and the Peace Prize in 1962, wrote a book which recommends heavy doses of vitamin C to combat the common cold.

"Thirty million Americans are taking vitamin C and improving their health. There's no doubt that these regulations would prevent many of them from continuing," he told a group of reporters Thursday.

Pauling said that if vitamin C in heavy doses is placed on a prescription basis people would have to pay more for it or buy larger quantities of weaker pills. He said it costs more to buy a lot of weaker pills than a few high-strength ones.

"I think the FDA has gone about handling it in quite the wrong way . . . it will have very serious consequences for the people of the United States if it goes into effect," Pauling said.

19, Including Ex-Policeman, Indicted for Selling Drugs

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nineteen dealers in the Vito Genovese crime family, including a former city cop and others allegedly involved with the Mafia, have been indicted for selling $61,000 worth of narcotics to undercover police officers, the district attorney for the Bronx and Westchester County announced Thursday. Three of those indicted, described as "upper echelon" was identified as Michael Zahler, 31, of Brooklyn. He was indicted on a class "C" felony. Bronx Dist. Atty. Mario Merola and Dist. Atty. Carl A. Vergari of Westchester County said the men together sold four pounds of cocaine and a pound of heroin to undercover agents using police "buy money." Six of those indicted remain at large.

If you're not happy with the '74 Ford I sell you, how can I expect to sell you a '76 or a '78?

When I see you coming through my door, I don't see just one potential customer. I see a whole string of them.

Because if I can make you happy with one of my brand-new 1974 Fords, and with the way I service them and treat you, I know you'll be back. Again and again.

And—who knows?—maybe next time you'll have your brother-in-law with you. Or a friend. And his brother-in-law.

You see, repeat business and recommendations are really the heart of our success in selling Fords in this area.

So come in and take a look at our beautiful new Pintos, Torinos, Mavericks, LTDs, Galaxies, Thunderbirds, and the exciting, all-new Mustang II.

150th Person Abducted in Argentina

American Held for $1 Million

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The president of the Argentine subsidiary of Amoco International Oil Co. of Chicago was kidnapped near his plush Argentine suburban home and held for $1 million ransom, police said Thursday.

Police sources said David B. Wilkie Jr., 48, father of five and a Buenos Aires resident for seven years, was kidnapped Tuesday—the third American at the 150th person abducted this year in Argentina's kidnapping wave.

An Amoco spokesman here denied Wilkie had been kidnapped, claiming the executive was on a visit to the United States. But Amoco's head office in Chicago confirmed that Wilkie was nabbed Tuesday while en route to work from his home in the fashionable northern suburb of Martinez.

The Chicago spokesman said "preliminary telephone contacts" were made with the kidnappers Thursday but that no further contact was made as of early today. "We have no idea where he is or what the negotiations will involve," he said.

The Buenos Aires newspaper La Razon newspaper carried a detailed account of the kidnapping and police sources, although they would not elaborate, said the account was essentially correct.

La Razon said Wilkie's chauffeur-driven limousine was intercepted by three cars as he left his home en route to his office in a downtown building.

Wilkie's vehicle was blocked by one car in front and another behind, while occupants of a third vehicle rushed up and dragged him and his chauffeur, Juan Carlos Martinez, from the limousine, the newspaper said.

The account said Wilkie and Martinez were shoved into one of the three vehicles but the chauffeur was released within a few blocks after being threatened with death if he told police about the kidnapping.

According to La Razon,

Martinez said Wilkie offered no resistance and the kidnappers told him he would not be hurt if the requested ransom was paid.

The newspaper said it had learned that ransom of $1 million has been asked, and said secret negotiations were believed to be under way with the kidnappers.

The other Americans kidnapped this year are John R. Thompson, president of Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., and Anthony Da Cruz, technical manager for Kodak.

A record ransom of $3 million was paid for Thompson, who was released unharmed July 7. Kodak paid $1.5 million for Da Cruz' release.

Northern Ireland Villages Evacuated

BELFAST (UPI) — Bombings, vehicle hijackings and road blockades today disrupted nearly every main highway in Northern Ireland and forced the evacuation of entire villages, army and police spokesmen said.

"Reports of suspect bombs and blocked roadways have been coming in so fast it's been impossible to list them, but so far almost half a ton of explosives has been used in the 17 bombs that have gone off," a police spokesman said shortly after midnight.

Since then, two more bombs exploded, bringing the number of blasts since the wave of violence began on Thursday to 19. Two persons were injured in Thursday's incidents.

"There have been more security incidents in the past 12 hours than we've had to deal with in the previous 12 weeks," said an army spokesman.

He said nearly every town in Northern Ireland had experienced a hijacking incident and that a hijacked—and possibly booby-trapped—car, bus or truck had been placed across most roads in the province.

Police said a number of entire villages had been evacuated to nearby farms and schools in the countryside because hijacked cars and buses posed a threat to the communities.

The two men injured were a school principal and janitor hurt when a land mine blew up outside their school. Police said the principal, Tommy Carr, was blown 20 feet into the air. The force of the blast was so great it tore the clothes from his body but he was only slightly injured.

Rail services in Belfast were disrupted when a bomb blast destroyed part of a rail line leading to the northern part of the city.

The army spokesman said bomb experts were being called to deal with so many bombs that many would just have to be isolated and left until the experts could get around to working on them.

Mass Arrest of Jews by Soviet Police

By GORDON F. JOSELOFF MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet secret police Thursday arrested 18 Jews planning to deliver a petition to the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) on behalf of an imprisoned woman, a Jewish source said.

The 18 were picked up separately as they made their way to the presidium headquarters, the source said. An officer at militia headquarters in the Ministry of Internal Affairs confirmed the arrests.

It was one of the largest mass arrests in recent weeks of Soviet Jews seeking to emigrate to Israel.

Observers said the police action could have been aimed at avoiding any incidents that might discredit the government during the current World Congress of Peace Forces meeting here.

The 18 were trying to deliver a petition signed by 85 Jews calling for the release of Sylvia Zalmanson, sentenced to 10 years in prison in 1970 for her part in an alleged plot to hijack an airliner to Sweden.

The appeal, made available in a text to Western correspondents, said Miss Zalmanson's poor state of health would not allow her to survive the sentence.

It also asked for the release of 29 other Jews it said were jailed for trying to emigrate to Israel.

Among those arrested were well known activists Vladimir Slepak, an electronics engineer, and Viktor Polisky, the source said.

Later, a group of 23 Soviet Jews sent telegrams to the Supreme Soviet and the Attorney General's office protesting the violation of "the most elementary civil rights." They said the arrests were "arbitrary and illegal."

Attica Case: Two Charges Are Dismissed

BUFFALO, N. Y. (UPI) — State Supreme Court Justice Carman F. Ball has dismissed two of the four charges against former Attica prison inmate Richard Bilello in connection with the Attica prison rebellion.

Bilello, 43, of New York City and six others were charged with two counts of coercion and two counts of unlawful imprisonment in an indictment returned by the special Wyoming County grand jury investigating the 1971 prison uprising.

Ball said Wednesday charges that Bilello coerced and unlawfully imprisoned fellow inmate Robert Miles were based on insufficient evidence and ordered them dropped.

However, Ball said the two charges of coercion and unlawfully imprisoning Richard Chesley, a corrections department employee, still stand against Bilello.

Ball's action was the first dismissal of any charges against the men indicted by the panel, which is still in session.

Bilello is currently serving a life sentence in another state prison and is also named in another indictment charging him and others with 34 counts of first degree kidnapping.

HVP and Eglevsky Ballet Present 'Sleeping Beauty'

EXCHANGING GREETINGS backstage prior to curtain time Monday night were (L-R) Robert Doubleday, director of Cultural Affairs at Rockland Community College; Janet Reed, director of Kingston School of Ballet; Andre Eglevsky, director of Eglevsky Ballet Company; and Dr. Richard Olsen, chairman of the Music Department at UCCC and publicity chairman for the Philharmonic, Ulster County Council. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

The Eglevsky Ballet Company and the Hudson Valley Philharmonic staged a full production of "Sleeping Beauty" ballet Monday, Oct. 22 in Kingston's Community Theatre.

With Claude Montoux on the conductor's podium and Andre Eglevsky directing the stage production, everyone was treated to a rare evening of top dancing talents plus the beautiful music of Tchaikowsky. The sets and costumes added lustre to the production all of which gave a new dimension to cultural programs in this area. The Philharmonic is to be applauded for this type of programming.

The performances by Jane Miller and Dermot Burke were outstanding. Miss Miller, a native New Yorker, has danced with the National Ballet of Washington and the Harkness Ballet. She was a guest artist and later toured as principal dancer. Her first "Giselle" at the Philadelphia Academy of Music was partnered by none other than Edward Villella.

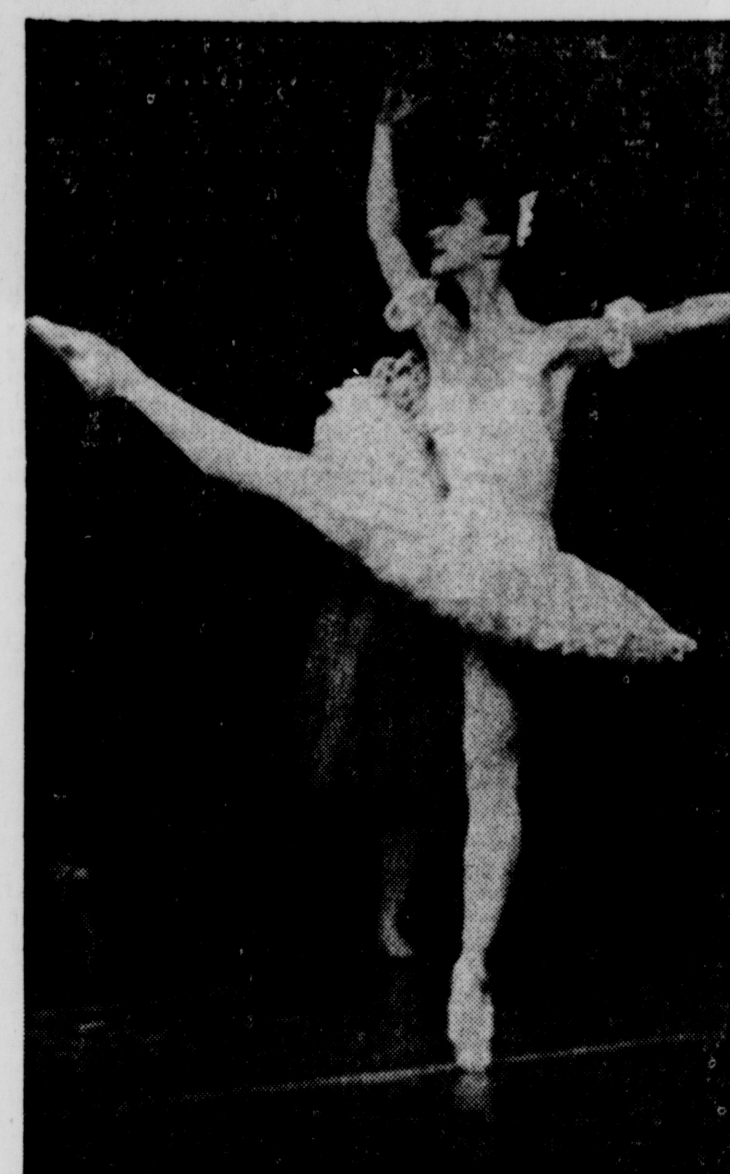

Burke, who hails from Dublin, Ireland, received all his dance training in the United States. He studied with the American Ballet Center, served an apprenticeship with the Joffrey Ballet prior to becoming a member of that company. He then left to become a soloist with the National Ballet of Washington. Miller and Burke were exceptional in the Pas de Deux in Act III.

There were many others in the cast who contributed to the total success of the ballet. These included the talented Elisabetta Calero and Rafael Reyes who danced the Puss-in-Boots segment of Act III, and Rodney Winfield and Donna Grisez in the Red Riding Hood and the Wolf number. Andrei Kulyk was excellent in the difficult Trepak and Deborah Weaver as the Lilac Fairy was poetry in motion.

Sometimes a brief appearance by a dancer stays with you the longest. And this is the case of Steven-Jan Hoff who danced the Bluebird segment of the Pas de Caractere in Act. III. This dancer is excellent. Born in Amsterdam, he received a Dutch Government scholarship to study at the school of American Ballet. He was a principal dancer in the American Ballet Theatre production of Anthony Tudor's Undertow and Echoing of Trumpets. He also received a Rockefeller grant for choreography, a LePercq Foundation grant to study film, and a New York State Council on the Arts grant for his Film and Dance Theatre of which he is now director. Dancing with Hoff in this portion of Act III was the very talented Anna Aragno Diaz, who has trained at the Bolshoi and Kirov Ballet in the USSR and has made many guest appearances where she was partnered by Edward Villella.

The evening, although a little long, was interesting for it combined top talents with charm, beauty and the lush melodies of Tchaikowsky.

JANE MILLER who danced the role of Princess Aurora in "The Sleeping Beauty" presented Monday night in Community Theatre by the Eglevsky Ballet Company. The ballet was part of the new Philharmonic series and Claude Montoux directed the orchestra. Miss Miller's partner was Dermot Burke. Other outstanding performances were given by Deborah Weaver, Anna Aragno Diaz and Steven-Jan Hoff.

Divorcee's Nightmare Before Wedding

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My first marriage was a disaster so I got a divorce. Then I met Hal. We fell in love and decided to marry. Hal wanted a large church wedding so we went to his family minister (a Baptist) and made all the arrangements. We were in heaven.

It never occurred to Hal or me to tell the minister I was married before. I didn't think it mattered, because I knew many divorced Baptists who had married in the church. Hal's mother knew I was a divorcee. This same minister married Hal's younger sister when she was four months pregnant.

At the wedding rehearsal, the night before the wedding, we showed the minister our license and he said: "Why I can't marry you — you've been married before!" What happened after that was a nightmare. I begged and pleaded, but the minister refused to marry us. Luckily I found a minister who would, but I had to change the location of the wedding. I cried all night, and got married with red and swollen eyes. It was terrible.

My question: Since when can't a Baptist minister marry divorced persons?

STILL BURNING IN TEXAS
DEAR STLL: There is no universal ruling in the Baptist denomination which prohibits divorced persons from being married in the church, but some groups of Baptist churches have guidelines relative to this issue which their clergy will follow. Unfortunately, you appear to have picked one of this group.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old divorcee with a four-year-old daughter. People tell me I'm very attractive and have a good personality. I'm a receptionist, meet many men and get invited out often.

Larry is 46; he was married when he was 17, but it was annulled. He married again at 21; that lasted a year. Later he married a divorcee and they stayed married for 15 years. He doesn't look his age and I find him very exciting. We date four or five nights a week. He loves sports, and we see all the baseball, football, hockey, and basketball games. We have a great time together, and I keep thinking how marvelous it would be to be married to him.

That's the problem, Larry says marriage is the kiss of death to romance. Is he right? Am I a hopeless romantic? He's getting all the privileges of marriage with none of the responsibilities. I know he cares for me, but how can I get him to marry me? Is an ultimatum the answer?

WANTS MARRIAGE
DEAR WANTS: Don't give him an ultimatum unless you're prepared to lose him. At least he's honest and isn't leading you on. If it's marriage you want, look for a man who's marriageable. Larry isn't.

DEAR ABBY: I know you have stated a dozen times that it is improper to write "no gifts, please" on invitations, but something must be done about showering expensive gifts on older people who neither want nor need them.

I am soon to celebrate my 50th wedding anniversary, and I do not want a truckload of "things" for which have no use.

There are so many lovely friends and relatives who go overboard, spending their hard-earned money for these useless gifts.

We want to entertain our friends, but we absolutely do not want them to bring or send us any presents. Isn't there some way we can let our wishes be known without being ill-mannered?

NO GIFTS, PLEASE
DEAR NO GIFTS: An invitation is suggesting that gifts are expected. A close friend or relative can spread the word that a contribution to some worthy cause in honor of your "50th" would be your preference.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

Although it sounds too good to be true in this age of inflated prices, small farms and other pieces of property still do get sold occasionally for an amount equal to a few years' taxes. As an example, I personally know one young man who recently purchased 15 acres of prime mountain land in an especially scenic part of western North Carolina. Mini-farms adjoining his property are selling for up to $1,000 an acre and more...yet he paid a total of under $300 for his "steal".

How are these bargains found, and how can you find one for yourself?

Every state in the U.S. and every province of Canada seems to have a slightly different way of handling the sale of back-tax land, and the process used by Pennsylvania is as good a one to describe as any. Twice a year, each county offers such property in a "tax claim sale". This is an auction at which the minimum bid accepted on any chunk of land is the amount of back taxes due. The new owner of each parcel becomes responsible for other debts on the property too.

Pennsylvania counties also hold what are known as "judicial sales". These are twice-a-year auctions of acreage that is guaranteed to be free and clear of all outstanding debts. The minimum bid allowed at a judicial sale is a flat $1.00 per parcel.

Yep, it really is possible to find country property at bargain-basement prices in most parts of Canada and the United States. But do you really want it? Many of these parcels come onto the market in the way they do because of their very undesirability: no one thought enough of them to offer them for sale in the usual manner...or even to pay their taxes. Even the good pieces of back-tax property often have a hidden catch: you may be required to wait as long as seven years before your claim of ownership is legally recognized.

That's the case, anyway, with my friend in North Carolina. His 15 acres was a fantastic buy...but he still has five years to go before he knows that his mini-farm is absolutely his!

For more complete information about buying back-tax land in the U.S. and Canada, send 10¢ and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS, in care of this paper. Ask for Reprint No. 101, BACK-TAX LAND.

Look Here Mrs. Homemaker

Here is how to keep your goblins safe this Halloween, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. Halloween is the night before All-Saint's Day. Christians chose November first to honor their many saints. The night before was called "All Saint's Eve," or hallowed eve, meaning holy evening. This is only part of halloween's history.

Today black witches, goblins, ghosts and even black cats prowl on halloween night. Pumpkin candles are lit and children have fun going from door-to-door in the neighborhood. These doings all sound rather innocent, until we hear of several costumes that burst into flames each halloween. With a few precautions this kind of news can be prevented this year.

If you plan to buy a new halloween costume this halloween, read the package it comes in, check for the words "flame retardant." If you plan to make the costumes yourself, then you can add your own flame resistant finish.

Recipe For a Flame Retardant Finish:

Mix 3 ounces of boric acid with a little bit of water, to make a paste. Next add the paste along with 7 ounces of Borax to 2 quarts of hot water. Stir the combination until it's clear. Next dampen the costume with this liquid. It's best to use a cotton fabric; don't use rayon or resin treated fabrics. When the costume is almost dry, press it with a moderately hot iron.

This flame retardant finish needs to be repeated after each washing, or after a long storage.

Even though your halloween costume is treated for flame resistance, fire is still possible unless a few general safety precautions are followed. One suggestion is to carry a flashlight instead of a candle on halloween night. Accompany your child on Halloween, and the chances of an accident are greatly reduced.

Here are a few more safety tips for the trick or treat person:

1. Have children wear light colored costumes — they're easier for motorists to see. Sew on reflective tape for both trim and safety.
2. Costumes should be easy to move in and should not be so long that the child trips over it.
3. Face masks need smooth eye holes and should be large enough so the wearer can see straight ahead and to each side.
4. Do not let the children carry sharp objects with them.
5. Put the porch light on so trick or treaters can see where they are going.

THIS 4-H'ER IS SO ORGANIZED!

I'm working toward completion of my 4-H achievement record book on clothing. I am limited for sewing space, but came up with an idea that helps to keep my work confined to a corner.

I tack my sewing sheet of instructions to a small 18x24-inch bulletin board which is on the wall in front of my machine.

An upward glance immediately reveals the next step and my hands are free to keep the construction of my garment progressing smoothly.

I sometimes tack up buttons, zipper, lace, small pattern pieces, etc., until I'm ready to use them. It eliminates guessing where they are.

Dear Heloise:
My little brother wanted to carve a jack-o'-lantern for Halloween.

We got him an orange, cut off the top and let him hollow it out. He put a candle inside and is all set for the big night.

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS!

Famous U.S. Women Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team members go on the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right—20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep "full"—no starvation—because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home. (Not the grapefruit diet!)

This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today. Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $2.00 ($2.25 for Rush Service) cash is O.K.—to NOR-CAL Products, P.O. Box 894, Cupertino, CA. 95014. Don't order unless you want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks! Because that's what the Ski Team Diet will do.

BRENDON D. ALEXANDER

Highway Safety Chairman Elected

KINGSTON
Brendon D. Alexander of 63 Harding Avenue has been elected chairman of the Ulster County Highway Safety Committee and David J. Goble, a Saugerties town justice of the peace, has been elected vice-chairman.

Outgoing chairman William Trappnell, Ellenville police chief, was given a unanimous vote of praise and Grants Review chairman, John J. Taylor, was also cited. Taylor, the director of public safety in New Paltz, will remain in his post as grants review chairman.

Alexander, a member of the Ulster County United Way board of directors and a member of the Mid-Hudson Heart Association, is married to the former Irene Haggerty. They are the parents of three children.

Goble is a veteran of World War II and holds a master's degree from Oneonta State University. He teaches driver education at Saugerties High School. Married to the former Marjorie Tourgee of White Plains, Goble, his wife and children live at 6 Simmons Street in Saugerties.

Other members of the committee include Herbert L. Wells of West Shokan, Charles F. Ayasse of High Falls, George D. Kakoullis of Kingston, John T. Tiano of Saugerties and John W. McFadden of Shokan.

Ex-officio members include Sheriff William B. Martin, County Highway Superintendent Jose Camallonga, and Legislator Clifford W. Snyder, chairman of the Sheriff's Committee of the County Legislature.

YOUTH CONVENTION — Officials and student leaders of the Ulster County Legislature's Youth-In-Government Program gathered recently to discuss arrangements for the November 8 platform convention at Ulster County Community College. Individual party planks for platforms have already been filed. Participating at the planning session were (l-r) Legislator S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 2), chairman of the Legislature's Recreation and Youth Committee; faculty advisors Patricia Breen and Bonnie MacCaig and Freedom Party leader Judy Castellana. Marist Students to Roll Out Barrel POUGHKEEPSIE — And the reason is to generate money for the American Cancer Society. One organizer Peter Wilderotter has estimated that $1,000 may be raised. He was instrumental in a similar barrel rolling last year from St. Joseph's College, Portland, N.H., that netted $500. They hope to spur pledges by college, roll around the area for a while, and head for Newark, N.J., then roll back.

The students, mostly from the second and third floors of ten-story Champagnat Hall, will take four-hour shifts in rolling the barrel along highways to the Budweiser plant in Newark. The barrel will be empty and attached to a dolly for wheeling. College President Linus Poy has given his blessings to the project by way of a letter of introduction; Budweiser has supplied stickers for the back of the barrel.

The great roll is set for the weekend of Nov. 1 and Wilderotter is out to set the "world record" set by his crew in New Hampshire last year of 250 miles. A pep rally prior to the introduction of Budweiser has been scheduled.

Route 209 Association ... Now Seeking New Highway

By CARL GRAHAM

ACCORD have been promised a new route, and a bypass around A design has been drawn up Route 209. We feel strongly that it is time the promises be kept."

The letter concluded by asking reconsideration of the area's needs and requesting a statement of their position from the governor and Schuler.

Dresner said that recent press releases have referred to "improvement" of the existing Route 209 and pointed out that the Association was seeking a "new" Route 209.

The Association plan for the narrow, twisting highway calls for incorporation of several stretches of relatively new highway, such as the Kingston Hurley portion, into the new route, with widening of the road, straightening of curves and other engineering im-

"We recognize that there is a distance factor involved in getting people together for these meetings," Dresner said. "So we plan to have a series of regional meetings in various communities along the route to make it more convenient for local businessmen and officials to attend."

Dresner said the group's decision to take no stand on the Transportation Bond issue resulted from the apparent failure of Governor Rockefeller and Transportation Director Raymond Schuler to answer letters sent to them recently by the Association.

In the letters, the Association noted that Route 209 had not been mentioned in projects outlined in connection with the bond issue.

"Route 209 is the only north-south highway through the region connecting the Delaware and Hudson valleys," the letter stated. "It is the oldest highway in the state and one of the most dangerous. For 25 years the people of the area improvements along most of the its motto "A New 209 Now." A design has been drawn up incorporating the motto on a replica of a federal route sign.

The Association, reactivated in June after lying dormant for several years, has adopted as its motto "A New 209 Now."

FIRE PROTECTION ...

City of Kingston Adds New Firehouse ..

The problems of a City are much like the problems of people. Needs arise, but if they aren't too pressing, we "Make Do" when we're able. But several years ago it was apparent that we couldn't "Make Do" with our Fire Fighting Facilities.

So the Koenig Administration took immediate steps to correct the situation by building the New Rondout Fire Station in 1971. The First Firehouse built in Kingston in 60 years. TOWN OF SAUGERTIES statement should be researched, Charles Goertz, Republican, further to get the actual facts. Conservative candidate for Goertz said, "It appears that supervisor of the Town of for three years now a majority Saugerties, has criticized the of town taxpayers have been incumbent administration over paying less than their share a recently announced tax cut while the village has been for Saugerties village residents paying more."

Goertz said it happened "After hearing Supervisor (A. because Schovel, the town's Michael) Schovel's radio anchor fiscal officer, had placed nouncement and news releases the town police expenditure in regarding a tax cut for village the general account instead of residents in their general town the general outside village tax for 1974, I feel this account."

"This error is being pictured to village residents as a beneficial circumstance," Goertz said. "Let's consider the poor retired people who had to come up with extra money at tax time for the past three years."

Goertz said that "As your full-time supervisor I can do my own budgeting and I will not be dependent on a budget officer. I would check and recheck the advice from State Audit and Control."

"Saugerties needs a less arrogant supervisor who will check on a possible error, especially when it was pointed out to him at a budget hearing last year by a concerned taxpayer. If Supervisor Schovel had taken the time to thoroughly research this question at last year's budget hearing the error could have been resolved one year earlier."

Goertz said that this would have resulted in increased taxes for the majority in an election year. "Three-quarters of the amount to be raised by taxes for the general outside village account in the 1974 projected budget is to make up for this past error and that is still not the end of it," he claimed.

Seeks New Hours

SAUGERTIES the mother of four children two of whom are married. She has lived in Saugerties for 17 years and has been active in various civic and church organizations. A student of economics, business and government in high school, she was employed for five years with a utility company in Wisconsin.

She said she would like to put to use her capabilities with regard to keeping records, sending out bills and receipts, the taking of payments, balancing deposits and meeting people.

Mrs. Chodaba said that she doesn't believe that "only Republicans can be elected in Saugerties. A town with a two-party system is a healthy and well balanced town," she said.

BUCKLEY BIDS CURRAN SUCCESS — U. S. Senator James L. Buckley (L), recently wished county legislative Conservative candidate William P. Curran success in his bid for election in the new District 6 (Rosendale-Esopus). Curran is attempting to duplicate Senator Buckley's feat, in that Curran is a GOP committeeman, who is seeking office, solely on the Conservative line. If successful, Curran will be caucusing with the Republican majority as Buckley does in the Senate.

Gottlieb Outlines Proposals

WOODSTOCK "All the candidates in Woodstock are in favor of keeping out unscrupulous developers and are in favor of doing more for senior citizens. But what are their specific programs?" Democratic candidate for Woodstock Town Councilman Sy Gottlieb has asked.

In a press release, Gottlieb outlined what he called some of his proposals and positions on the issues, saying, "I have proposed the creation of a senior citizens shuttle and emergency service to be paid for out of Woodstock's share of federal revenue sharing funds and at no cost to our local budget. This service would enable our senior citizens, few of whom have their own means of transportation, to get out for essential errands when their physical condition or the weather makes it otherwise impossible."

"I have proposed that the town highway superintendent be made more responsive to the needs of the town highway system through the use of budgetary controls over his department imposed by the town board," Gottlieb said.

"I have proposed the creation of recreation areas in each of the town's districts for use by both adults and children."

"I have proposed that the town actively seek to obtain conservation easements from large owners of open lands in the town so as to prevent these beautiful areas from being despoiled and developed," he continued.

"I have proposed that the town refuse to renew its cablevision lease at California Quarry Road unless it receives firm assurances from the cablevision firm that the cablevision service will be supplied to the outlying areas within the near future," Gottlieb suggested.

"I believe that these and my other specific proposals are carefully thought out and constructive, and demonstrate my concern, commitment, and my ability to effectively serve and represent the citizens of Woodstock on the town board," he concluded.

Savago's Absence Noted

NEW PALTZ

"For the second time in a month Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (D-Dist. 1), chose to be absent from an important community debate," Democratic candidate for legislator in Dist. 8, Linda Herr charged today.

"He was invited to, and absent from both the Gardiner and New Paltz Homeowner's association candidate's nights. These are important evenings in community life," she said, "when citizens can ask, candidly hard questions on the issuess and can demand candid forthright 'responses'."

On the county level, Ms. Herr feels the citizen "needs to know why the Legislature has not taken a stand on the Stewart Jetport or even questioned the inadequacy of the Metropolitan Transportation Authority's report."

She said they need to know "why more than $3 million in federal revenue sharing funds has gone to contractors for county building projects in-

Kingston while funding for Community Action programs, Senior Citizens Alliance and County Libraries is woefully inadequate."

Ms. Herr also feels citizens have a right to know "why the Legislature took a weak stand on the nuclear power plant in Lloyd where opposition is necessary" and "why the medical, recreational, counseling and consumer services of the county are so inadequate, if not invisible."

'It's Time For a Change' . . . Claims Marbletown Hopeful

FRED M. BANTA JR.

STONE RIDGE roads will be in and whether for the Marbletown Democratic Committee for six years. A member of the Lyonsville Reformed Church, Banta is a former member of the Kripplush Fire Company and American Legion Post 1519. He is a U.S. Army veteran.

Banta resides with his wife, Ruth, and three of their five children in Lyonsville. One daughter and one son are married; the couple has five grandchildren.

"I feel that the good of the Town of Marbletown has not always been in the minds of the men who have made decisions for the town in past years," Fred M. Banta, Jr., Democratic candidate for councilman in the Town of Marbletown said in a statement released recently.

"I am running this year for councilman because in my heart I feel it's time for a change," Banta continued. "If I am elected I promise to find out the feelings of a majority of the townspeople, not just a few, before I vote on any important issue."

"It's you, the voter, who determines whether town funds will be spent wisely and if you will get the most for your tax dollar," Banta continued. "You determine what shape town

An Endorsement in Olive

TOWN OF OLIVE Olive Town Clerk Oliver A. Crawford has received the endorsement of the present Supervisor James H. Glemming as candidate for the supervisor's post on the Republican ticket in November.

Glemming said that Crawford deserves consideration, and he is "most familiar with the administration of the affairs of the town and he is most qualified to carry them out."

Regarding his own change of enrollment from Democrat to Republican, Glemming, in an open letter to the residents of the town, said despite some "malicious and contemptible" comments he has received he is proud to have had the courage of his convictions in joining the Republican Party.

Glemming said that many others have taken similar steps and he pays them tribute for their decisions. He said that no matter how proud he is to be a Republican, "the most dominant aspect of my tenure as supervisor was that I served you first."

Yanks Ask Ruling on Houk

Jenkins to Texas, McCovey to Padres

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS — The Chicago Cubs before falling traded to the San Diego Padres, Ferguson Jenkins, who to 14-16 this year, was dealt the last place club in the National League West, for Thursday to the Texas Rangers, the last-place team in pitcher Mike Caldwell.

In addition, the Padres will receive minor league outfielder Bernie Williams.

In other baseball developments, American League President Joe Cronin asked Detroit for details on the signing of Manager Ralph Houk from the New York Yankees and slugger Frank Howard was given his release by the Tigers.

Jenkins, 29, the National League's Cy Young Award winner in 1971, said in mid-season that he just didn't feel like playing baseball.

New Ranger manager, Billy Martin said of the trade:

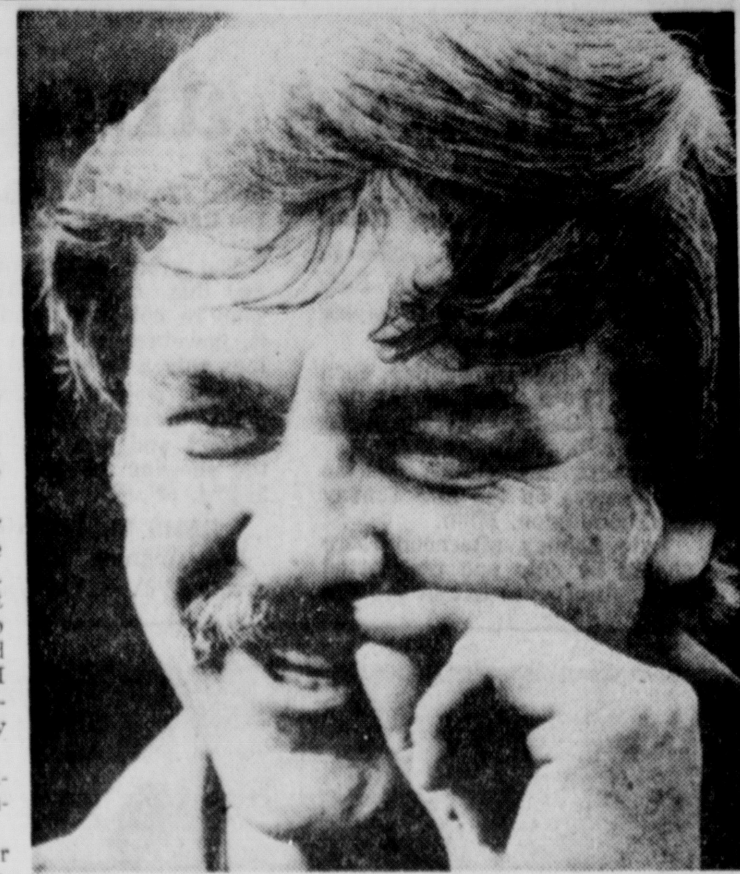

"Jenkins gives us the stopper we needed desperately. He's a workhorse and he's a winner. Getting Jenkins is the first big step toward establishing our pitching staff and turning things around for the Rangers."

Jenkins, who lives in Canada, was not available for comment.

Cub Manager Whitey Lockman viewed the trade as part of Chicago's "youth and speed" movement. Of infielder-outfielder Madlock, 22, he said:

"Our scouts are extremely high on him as being one of the best hitting prospects they have seen in some time."

Harris, 23, played centerfield and second base for the Rangers.

WAITING — Dick Williams twitches his mustache and smiles at his Riviera Beach, Fla., home after arriving there Thursday. Williams, recently resigned manager of the Oakland A's, hopes to be relocated with another ballclub on the East Coast. Rumors are flying that it will be the Yankees. (UPI)

Reggie Has Advice for Williams

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Reggie Jackson, a man who has been to the mat with Charlie Finley, has a brief piece of advice for Dick Williams.

Stay cool!

Cool? Dick Williams suddenly felt icy chills up and down his back when he heard Charlie Finley had done an about-face and wasn't anywhere near letting him go to the New York Yankees without getting something back in return.

"I think he'll let him go eventually," says Reggie Jackson. "Mr. Finley simply is a good businessman. He's also the kind of man who'll spend $50 million to keep Dick Williams if anyone tries to blackmail him. You have to know the man. If he makes up his mind about something, money alone isn't going to get him to change it. You're going to have to get Howard Hughes, the Rockefellers and all those people, and still he won't budge once he makes up his mind. If Mr. Finley's pride is hurt, or if someone steps on his toes in this thing, Dick Williams isn't going anywhere."

Reggie Jackson was making his remarks in a midtown cafe Thursday. He had flown much of the night across the country, he still felt a bit blah from the trip and now he was being presented with a new car by Sport Magazine, which had chosen him the outstanding performer of the World Series.

Every time he was about to catch his breath, Jackson would be asked another question. Not about himself, or about his performance in the series, but about Finley or Williams.

"How do you feel about Williams leaving?" someone wanted to know.

"My honest feelings?" Jackson parried. "I wish they could hold him and not let him go. For selfish reasons. He's helped me so much. It can't be done though. The man has stated he wants to leave for personal reasons. Yet, I can't put the other man (Finley) down for what he's doing. I might do the same thing."

Being named the series MVP by a magazine is one thing. Being named the American League MVP by the Baseball Writers Association of America for 1973 is something else entirely. That hasn't happened yet to Reggie Jackson, but it will sometime next month. Who's going to beat him? That's when Charlie Finley is going to have another problem. Meaning money.

Reggie Jackson received $80,000 from the A's this year. Next year he's going to ask better than $100,000.

"The money is one thing," he says. "What I want even more though is the recognition that goes with it."

Among other things, Jackson also was asked whether he felt someone else on the Oakland club, perhaps Campy Campaneris, should've won the car? He didn't answer right away. Finally he did.

"I won the award," he said. "I didn't vote for me. I think Rolli Fingers could've won it; Darold Knowles could've won it; Joe Rudi could've won it or Campaneris could've won it. What can I say?"

While Reggie Jackson spoke, an older man listened to him not far away.

He listened intently, and when someone asked him how much money he thought Reggie Jackson should receive next year, he never hesitated a moment.

"I think he ought to get $100,000," said the man.

He gave his name as Martinez Jackson.

Being the father of Oakland's 27-year-old rightfielder, he conceded that maybe he was a little biased.

MVP — Reggie Jackson, outspoken and often controversial slugger of the Oakland A's, waves to a fan from the hood of a car presented to him Thursday by Sports Magazine. Jackson said that winning the World Series' Most Valuable Player Award was the "greatest thrill of my life." (UPI)

Mauch Named NL's Top Manager

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nine years later, at the ripe old age of 47, Gene Mauch has won another National League Manager-of-the-Year award.

"That's a long period of time," Mauch, manager of the Montreal Expos, said at his suburban Hacienda Heights home, and he added with a chuckle:

"It's just like my career as a player when I had a life-long slump as a hitter."

Mauch, who was the youngest manager in the big leagues when he took over at Philadelphia in 1960, was The Associated Press choice as outstanding National League manager in 1962 and 1964 while piloting the Phillies.

His third award was for guiding the Expos to a 79-83 record, only 3½ games behind the New York Mets in the wacky Eastern Division race.

Mauch, who has managed the Expos since they were born in expansion in 1969, had the team in contention until a seven-game losing streak in the stretch drive.

He received 121 votes in the poll of sports writers and broadcasters that was based on regular season play, 27 more than Yogi Berra of the Mets, Sparky Anderson of Cincinnati was third, with 77, and Walt Alston of Los Angeles fourth, 16.

"I don't think a guy should be blowing his own horn," said Mauch. "I feel good about it but I'll feel better when the Expos are the team of the year."

Before the season, Mauch said he was excited over the improvement of his club. The fourth-place finish was the best ever for the Expos.

"I thought we could win probably half of our games, I really did," he said, "but I had no idea it would make our team a challenger right up to the next-to-last day."

"It was just rough division play that made it possible. There were obvious holes in all the rest of the ball clubs, holes that didn't make 'em bad but kept any team from being outstanding enough to be overpowering."

"We know we have areas in which to improve," said Mauch, already thinking ahead. "With the exceptions of first base and shortstop, we were outstanding defensively."

Secretariat Minus Turcotte

Ethiopian Marathon Ace Abebe Bikila Is Dead

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Abebe Bikila, the bearded Imperial Guard at Emperor Heile Selassie's palace who twice made Olympic history in the marathon, died Thursday.

The slight Bikila awed spectators in Rome at the 1960 Olympics, running barefoot over the 26 mile, 385 yard marathon course in record time.

The first African-born athlete to win an Olympic gold medal, Bikila was timed in two hours, 15 minutes, 15.2 seconds—a record he would break four years later at the Japan Olympics.

He had been paralyzed from the waist down since 1969, when his neck was broken in an auto accident. After a year of treatment, Bikila returned home and participated in a number of paraplegic games.

He was to have returned to Stoke Mandeville Hospital in London for further treatment, but fell into a coma Saturday night and never regained consciousness.

But the record the 46-year-old Bikila left behind will be tough to break. His 2:12:11.2 at Japan—with the help of shoes, this time—made him the first athlete ever to win the grueling event twice. Frank Shorter won the marathon at Munich in 1972 with a 2:12:19.2.

TORONTO (UPI) — Secretariat, who has been virtually a one-rider horse throughout his illustrious career, will enter his 21st and last race Sunday without Ron Turcotte on his back.

As the famed Triple Crown winner goes to the post for the $125,000 added Canadian International Championship Stakes at Woodbine Race Track, he will be ridden by another jockey for only the third time in 21 races.

Turcotte was slapped with a five-day suspension Thursday by the stewards at Aqueduct in New York for his ride aboard Speak Action in the seventh race Wednesday. Turcotte's mount interfered with Sea Sister, ridden by Braulio Baeza.

The suspension, which goes into effect Saturday, knocks him off Secretariat. It was reported that Eddie Maple, who has ridden Riva Ridge, Secretariat's stablemate, in the past would replace him for Sunday's race.

Turcotte had ridden the Meadow Stable champion Thursday morning in a mile workout at Woodbine. As usual Secretariat shone, breezing the distance in 57 3/5 seconds.

Turcotte then met with the horse's owner, Mrs. Penny Tweedy, and trainer Lucien Laurin and together they pronounced the horse fit for Sunday's race.

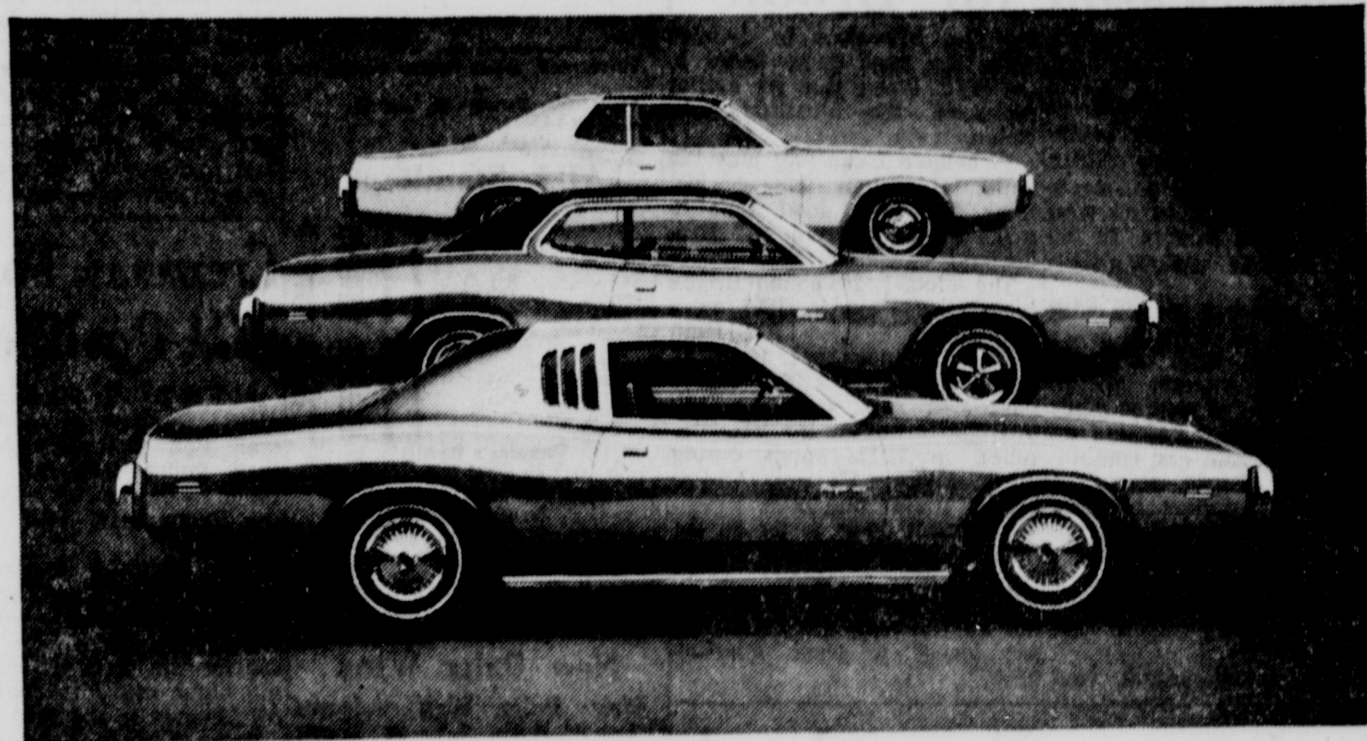

Turcotte had been scheduled to fly to New York Thursday to argue his case at the steward's meeting, but he was fogged in at the Toronto airport and the decision was made without him.

Being unable to ride Secretariat at Woodbine will undoubtedly be a huge disappointment to Turcotte for both sentimental and financial reasons.

Sentimentally, the race is the horse's last before he is shipped off to stud. In addition, Mrs. Tweedy said one of the factors in her decision to race Secretariat at Woodbine is the fact both Turcotte and Laurin are Canadian-born and so would be proud to show off the horse to their countrymen.

On the financial side, Turcotte stands to lose a substantial payday. The winner's purse for the race is $92,365 and Secretariat is a heavy favorite.

Rams and Steelers Picked in Key NFL Contests

By BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — George Allen, the Washington Redskins' coach, is fond of saying that the future is now.

If now includes Sunday, then Coach Chuck Knox of the Los Angeles Rams, will no doubt agree with Allen.

Because the future of the Rams goes on the line Sunday in Bloomington, Minn., late Sunday afternoon there should be only one undefeated and untied team left in the National Football League—either the Rams or the Minnesota Vikings.

The professional oddsmakers say that it will be Minnesota. They're not that positive about it, however, awarding the Vikings only a three-point edge.

Last week's forecast had eight correct calls, four incorrect and one tie. That left the showing for the season at 51-23-4, or .689.

RAMS 24, VIKINGS 22
Los Angeles (6-0) at Minnesota (6-0) — The Vikings are no pushovers. The game will be a bruising battle.

STEELERS 35, BENGALS 24
Cincinnati (4-2) at Pittsburgh (5-1) — This is the second meeting in three weeks between the Bengals and the Steelers. Pittsburgh is favored with Franco Harris back in high gear.

LIONS 24, PACKERS 17
Green Bay (2-2-2) at Detroit (1-4-1) — Five weeks ago the two teams tied 13-13. The early line has this one as a "pick it" game. We keep saying it's time for the Lions to do something.

DOLPHINS 43, PATRIOTS 17
Miami (5-1) at New England (2-4) — There shouldn't be any doubt about this one. The Dolphins even look good giving away 15 points.

REDSKINS 40, SAINTS 28
Washington (5-1) at New Orleans (2-4) — If Billy Kilmer starts for the Redskins, he'll want to impress the folks in Tulane Stadium, where he once played for the Saints. But New Orleans and the points just might be worthwhile.

49ERS 27, FALCONS 21
Atlanta (3-3) at San Francisco (3-3) — San Francisco won the first game, 13-9, is favored by six in the rematch. This isn't the time to pick an upset.

COWBOYS 35, EAGLES 17
Dallas (4-2) at Philadelphia (1-4-1) — Dallas has won the last 11 games in this series. It should be 12 after Sunday.

BROWNS 44, CHARGERS 14
San Diego (1-5) at Cleveland (4-2) — The Browns blitzed the Oilers last weekend may do even better this week against San Diego.

RAIDERS 31, COLTS 21
Oakland (3-2-1) at Baltimore (2-4) — Oakland has never beaten Baltimore. There's always a first time, and this should be it.

CARDINALS 27, GIANTS 24
New York Giants (1-4-1) at St. Louis (2-4) — The Giants plan to start Randy Johnson in hopes of snapping a four-game losing streak. The Cards are also in a four-game tailspin.

BRONCOS 27, JETS 21
Denver (2-3-1) at New York Jets (2-4) — Denver has won the last three meetings with the Jets, and should do it again.

BEARS 28, OILERS 17
Houston (0-6) at Chicago (1-5) — One of these days, the Oilers may win again. But not Sunday.

CHIEFS 34, BILLS 24
Kansas City (3-2-1) at Buffalo (4-2) — It may have been more fitting to name that new stadium in Buffalo the Orange Juice House for O.J. Simpson, but he isn't enough.

Trotters Retain Old Magic

By STEVE KANE

STONE RIDGE
Who's the prettiest girl in the whole wide world?

Ain't no contest, brother. Only one woman's been whistled at and sung about on six continents, in a hundred languages and by legend knows how many million people. And that list got a little bigger Thursday night when an SRO crowd in Ulster County Community College's Senate Gym joined in.

She sure is somethin', that Sweet Georgia Brown.

Georgia's name was on everybody's lips. That's part of the spell the Harlem Globetrotters cast around. There was Marquis and Geese and Showboat and Pablo and all the rest of those guys out there on the court making that other team look silly. And there was everybody watching, trying to see everything, laughing at the same jokes, and maybe every now and then humming a little bit about Sweet Georgia.

The Harlem Globetrotters have been weaving their magic for years now. It's kind of a wonder how they keep up such a pace of success. It's the oldest act around, but those turnstiles keep spinning.

Marquis Haynes has been carrying the torch for Georgia for 29 years. He ought to know. "It's a different kind of magic," he says. "People know of us even if they haven't seen us in person. They know the Globetrotters are the original thing—and there's nothing like the original."

No indeed. There sure is nothing like what went on at Ulster. Marquis showed why they call him the "The World's Greatest Dribbler." Geese booted that ball from halfcourt right into the hoop, and when they chased him with the bucket, you know just about everybody was wondering—was this time it really had water in it?

Of course it didn't. The same old confetti came flying out, but the laughs were as loud as ever. It is a kind of magic. Inevitable though it is, you still appreciate. It's a little like listening to Leadbelly or Muddy Waters drag those notes out of a guitar. You ride them up, then settle back down, and you feel good because you know it was something exactly in the right place at exactly the right time.

"Twenty-nine years, off and on," Marquis says. He doesn't look it. "I think I've played more basketball games than any other human being. I think if I came out of college now, maybe I would go into regular basketball, but maybe not. I look upon myself as a showman rather than a competitor. We provide entertainment rather than competition. Maybe that's what keeps people coming."

In all senses of the word, the Globetrotters have entertained thoroughly. They have played before Popes and kings and Stone Ridge was no exception. "If I can bet there's a guy haven't been to a place," says named Joe who'll remember the Marquis, "then I've been so close I could reach over and touch it."

And everywhere they've been, Globetrotters have performed with thoroughness. They have played before Popes and kings and Stone Ridge was no exception. "If I can bet there's a guy haven't been to a place," says named Joe who'll remember the

Three Share Sahara Golf Lead

By JOE ST. AMANT

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Good weather produced a raft of good scores in the first round of the 72-hole, $135,000 Sahara Invitational and the pressure to make the cut becomes acute today in the second round.

With the temperature in the mid-70s and virtually no wind to whip up the Sahara-Nevada

Country Club course, three pros shot six-under-par 65 in the first round Thursday to tie for the lead.

First round leaders were two veterans, Homero Blancas, Houston, with 34-31, and 44-year-old Dow Finsterwald, Colorado Springs, Colo., 34-31, and 25-year-old Allen Miller, Pensacola, Fla., 32-33.

Finsterwald, who won the National PGA crown back in 1958, had eight birdies and two bogeys on his card. Blancas, 35, and Miller had six birds and all the rest pars.

Par of 36-35-71 was equaled by 18 of the golfers in the starting field of 144 but what was more remarkable was that 27 were under par.

Two strokes back of the leaders were three pros at 67—Lou Graham, Bruce Fleisher and Ben Kern.

There were four at 68—Leonard Thompson, Bob Menne, John Mahaffey and Jim Ferrell. And six at 69—John Schroeder, Steve Melnyk, Fred Marti, Art Wall, Ken Still and Bob E. Smith.

More good weather was forecast for the remainder of the four-day tournament. At the end of today's second round, the field was to be cut to the low 70s and ties.

Canadiens Breeze, 4-0

By United Press International

It's one thing for the Montreal Canadiens' National Hockey League opponents to stop Yvan Cournoyer, the clutch-goal scoring star of the circuit but what does it profit them if they overlook Jacques Lemaire?

Ask the Philadelphia Flyers today and they'll answer, "nothing."

The Flyers didn't allow Cournoyer to score Thursday night but Lemaire came through with a three-goal hat trick to lead the Canadiens to a 4-0 victory. It was the first NHL shutout for rookie goalie Wayne Thomas.

Under-rated if only because he plays on the same line with the sharp-shooting Cournoyer, Lemaire scored one goal in the second period and two in the third, raising his season total to four.

Phil Esposito scored two goals, raising his season total to 10, as the Boston Bruins routed the Buffalo Sabres, 9-4, and Billy Harris' backhand shot at 12:42 of the second period gave the New York Islanders a 1-1 tie with the Minnesota North Stars in Thursday night's other NHL games.

If it weren't for the New York Golden Blades, the New England Whalers wouldn't be in first place in the World Hockey Association's East Division.

The Whalers have won six of their 10 games this season with three of the wins coming over the Blades.

"We're natural rivals," said New England Coach Ron Ryan Thursday night after the Whalers' 8-3 victory over the Blades. "We've gotten to know each other very well. They play a wide open game and we like that."

Hugh Harris and Tom Webster scored within a 1:02 span in the second period Thursday night to spark the Whalers to their easy victory.

Harris' goal, his first of two in the game, came at 14:33 of the middle period with the score tied at 2-2. Webster followed with his goal at 15:35, skating in from goalie Jimmy McLeod's left side for a 4-2 New England lead and the Blades never caught up.

"We have a lot of problems with them," admitted Blade Coach Camille Henry. "We played 'em better last season than we are this season. We lost a lot of games to them but at least the scores were close."

Rosaire Paiement scored two goals and Cam Newton turned aside 36 shots as the Chicago Cougars beat the Quebec Nordiques, 4-2. Paiement put the Cougars ahead with his first goal of the night in the first period and scored again at 19:46 of the second period.

Cougars Thriving In the Hinterlands

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — If the National Basketball Association.

Carolina Coach Larry Brown had his way, he'd have his American Basketball Association team play on the road most of the season.

"It looks like we're a good road team all over this year," Brown said Thursday night after his Cougars walloped the Utah Stars, 115-104 in the night's only ABA contest.

"We've yet to lose in five games away from home."

Brown hesitated, then added: "Yet, we've won only one out of two at home."

No games were scheduled in the National Basketball Association.

For the losing Stars—their third straight defeat—all wasn't lost. Zelmo Beaty, a holdout during the preseason and for several of the Stars' earlier ABA games, was welcomed back with rousing applause in making his home debut.

The veteran 6-foot-9 center sunk 15 points, picked off nine rebounds and blocked two Cougar shots.

Billy Cunningham led the balanced Carolina scoring attack, teaming with Mack Calvin and Ted McClain to spark the Cougar offense in the first half. Cunningham had 25 points to tie Willie Wise of the Stars for game-scoring honors.

Calvin hit 16 in the first half.

Utah came to life in the third period. As Wise, James Jones and Beaty found the range from the field. The Stars took the lead, 78-77, on a Jones jumper with a minute to go and led, 80-79, as the quarter ended.

The Stars' lead was short lived, however, as McClain hit two quick ones in the first minute of the final period and the Cougars were back in front.

Last Season for Brodie

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John Brodie announced his retirement as quarterback of the San Francisco 49ers Thursday but Coach Dick Nolan denied that Brodie's announcement had anything to do with switching Steve Spurrier to the starting position against Atlanta on Sunday.

Brodie, who has played with the 49ers for all of his 17 years in pro football, said he would complete the current season and then retire to pursue other interests, including directing an anti drug program and continuing his study of Scientology.

Nolan, who announced only three hours earlier that Spurrier would start Sunday said, "The situation is the same. I have two No. 1 quarterbacks and another good one in Joe Reed."

The 38-year-old Brodie, who led San Francisco to division titles the past three years in the NFC West, said he earlier discussed the situation with Nolan.

"I believe I can still play the game effectively but I just think this is a good time to make an announcement," Brodie said.

The 6-foot-1, 203-pound Brodie joined the 49ers in 1957 as a No. 1 draft choice from Stanford. Since that time he has completed 2,428 career passes to rank fourth among pro quarterbacks. He has also rolled up 31,134 yards during his 17 years. He won All-Pro honors in 1965 and 1970.

"I expect John to be on the field a lot of the time during the rest of the season," Nolan said. "He has done as good a job as anybody could do. We are losing a great quarterback."

Course in Fly Casting At Community College

STONE RIDGE
Ulster County Community College is offering a credit-free course in Fly Casting on three Thursday nights, in the Senate Gymnasium on the Stone Ridge campus.

The course is intended to get the beginner off to a good start and to help the more experienced fly caster to work out the kinks and develop special casts for problem situations.

Theory and equipment will be discussed and video tape instant repays will be available for use as a learning aid.

Students should bring their fly rod, line and leader and a small dry fly with the hook removed.

The instructor will be Jim Cummins, who fishes every minute he possibly can.

Oct. 25 is the deadline for registration for this course, which is scheduled to start November 1.

Further information can be obtained by calling the Office for Continuing Education at the College (687-7621, Ext. 11 or 12).

Longest Season: At Monticello

MONTECELLO You can credit Monticello Raceway — the land of harness racing innovations — with another first — the longest continuous running race track in American history.

Leon Greenberg, president of Monticello Raceway, has announced that as a result of negotiations with Frederic W. Mance, director of the New York State Harness Racing Commission, the Sullivan County oval will continue to run races through January 13, 1974.

With the granting of Greenberg's request for the extended season, Monticello will continue on its regular daily schedule through Sunday, Oct. 28. Then, there will be no racing until Thursday evening, Nov. 1, when the track will adopt a four-day-a-week schedule. There will be racing on Thursday and Friday nights, Saturday afternoon and night doubleheaders and Sunday afternoons.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be 'dark' until December 8, when racing again returns to the current five nights (except Tuesday), weekly and Sunday afternoons.

The additional days granted by the State Harness Commission will give Monticello a total of 242 racing programs from April, 1973, through Jan. 13, 1974. No other race track in harness racing history has come close to that total.

"The addition of the new dates will be extremely important to the horsemen who have helped make this season a success," Greenberg commented. "This will give them a chance to stable at track all year round, enabling them to settle their families in Ulster County."

The expansion of the racing season to 242 programs is but another in a long series of innovations credited to the Monticello Raceway president. He created the controversial superfacts, which is now banned at state tracks, and later replaced it with the trifecta, now in effect at Monticello and other tracks. He was also the first to introduce winter holiday racing during the Christmas and New Year holidays.

Pharmacy's 1043 Single Highest of the Season

KINGSTON Port Ewen Pharmacy continues to set new high team singles and Ken LaCasse of the International League moved into sixth place in the Top Ten with a 660 series off lines of 241, 243 and 176.

The 1043 rolled by the Pharmacy gives them the top three singles as reported to The Freeman. Its other highs were 1025 and 1013 and the squad also holds the seasonal series record of 3053.

Jim Amendola led with 228 in the 1043 set. Gary Aidala added 216, George Brown 162, Dan Bernard 218 and Marty Hammer 219.

Elsewhere in the league, Gary Aidala shot 628 on 216, 212, and 200; Amendola had 228-620;

Ronnie Bruck 213, 213-619; Ernie Bartoff 204, 223-615; and Mike Cashara 224, 207-612. There were 37 games of 200 or better. Capri 400 decked 2900 for top series.

ED KRANEPOOL

IT'S METS DAY Sunday at Monticello Raceway, when Rusty Staub and Ed Kranepool and others will appear at the Mighty M track between the hours of 1 and 2 p.m.

Jameson: 585 Slam

KINGSTON Joan Jameson moved into the No. 6 spot in the area Top Ten with a 585 series or games of 174, 178 and 233, in the Bowlerama Quads. Her series paced the Jameson-Moore, Inc. squad to team highs of 760 and 2184.

Perla Bollin was runnerup with 546. Other high shooters included Barbara Van Keuren, 205-540; Kathy Spadafora, 207-522; Pam Schatzel, 201-520; and Gloria Daley 502.

Gunjah's Lead

SAUGERTIES Gunjah Warriors dropped a 26-6 decision to Alpha Cement Co., but still leads the B Division race with a minus 34 record in the Saugerties AA Touch Football League. Alpha is runnerup with 24. In the other game, Holy Cross topped Hertel Enterprises, 18-8, and both teams now have 2-5 marks.

Bill Noonan fired two TD aerys of 40 yards to Tom Beyer and 28 yards to Henry Meara and Mike Fox returned an interception 17 yards, for the Holy Cross scores. Ray Every's one-yard TD and Reggie Hamilton's safety accounted for the HE score.

Alpha's Les Hildebrand completed three TD passes, hitting Hal Johnson from the 14 and 21 yard lines and Roger Steltz from the 20. Mike Kirlauski returned a pass 19 yards and Phil Ricks added a safety. A Butch Myer-John Silinovich 23-yard pass gave Gunjah's their lone score.

Highland and Ellenville Major Hoople's Key Picks

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
Original Tight End

HOOPLE MANOR Egad, friends, your generosity overwhelms me! Even some of my most avid critics of the past can't help but congratulate me on my recent stupendous success in prognosticating scholastic and collegiate football games.

Your plaudits — kaff-kaff — are welcome, of course, but hardly necessary! Admittedly, pegging Ontario's win over Rondout, and Missouri's upset of Nebraska were monumental achievements — hak-kaff — but loyal followers of my forecasts, know the Hoople System pegs the season's major upsets year-after-year — har-rumph!

My record for scholastic games is a simply dazzling 31-9-1 which, translated into percentages, reads an amazing .775! And do you know that for the last four weeks I've had only four wrong? And do you know that if it weren't for a little carelessness on the part of Highland last week, I would have had my second straight perfect record? How's that for super picking?

But enough of this idle chit-chat, it's on to this week's picks:

KINGSTON 18, LOURDES 6 Lourdes is riding high after two straight wins, but Kingston's strength on the line will wear the Warriors down. The Maroons can be punishing and after last week's defeat at Ketcham, which I correctly predicted of course, KHS will be out to take its frustrations on someone.

SAUGERTIES 17, ROOSEVELT 10 I haven't missed a Saugerties game yet this season and there's no reason to start now. The Sawyers return home where they're sure to look a lot better than they have in three out of four road starts. An early Roosevelt mistake will get Saugerties off and winging.

HIGHLAND 21, WALLKILL 14 This should be one of the harder fought contests in years. Each team knows the importance of the game, and each is coached by men who demand nothing less than perfection. It may be a case of who gets who madder, or which team gets the first touchdown. Playing at home has to help Highland.

PINE BUSH 18, NEW PALTZ 15

The Bushmen are the best of the middle in my mind. That is, Pine Bush is just a notch below Highland, Wallkill, and Ellenville, and capable of beating everyone else in the league. New Paltz played very well last week, but it seems to me that a club that rolls up over 300 yards on the ground, should be able to score more than twice.

ELLENVILLE 28, MARLBORO 7

First Marlboro, then Rondout, and then Red Hook. Ellenville isn't about to lose another this season and that means it will do no worse than tie for first place with either Highland or Wallkill. But the Ellies can't afford to be over confident. I really can't see that happening though, Pete Meoli is in control of a hungry football team.

ONTEORA 18, LIBERTY 6

Speaking of overconfidence, the Onteora team can't get too cocky now that it has won a game. But it's nice that, Boiceville team can finally believe in itself. Now if only it can down Liberty, the cellar of the league. New Paltz played very

RED HOOK 14, RONDOUT 0 How can you pick a team which has lost to Onteora and is about to face a team which has beaten Highland? No way. Red Hook is no super team, but it will defeat the Ganders.

How about college football? you ask. Well we have a real doozy for you this week! Would you believe Notre Dame over Southern California? No, you say. Humph! May I remind you of my past triumphs.

The score will be Notre Dame 28, Southern Cal., 21.

Elsewhere, it will be: Alabama 46, Va. Tech 12; Holy Cross 16, Army 8; Missouri 22, Colorado 14; Harvard 30, Dartmouth 10; Oklahoma 41, Kansas State 21; Ohio State 39, Northwestern 8; Nebraska 38, Oklahoma State 28; Penn State 33, West Va. 14; Pittsburgh 25, Navy 12; Penn 21, Princeton 14; Rutgers 28, Columbia 12; Miami of Fla. 42, Syracuse 21; Texas 28, Rice 8; and Yale 28, Cornell 14, boola-boola.

Coleman Nears Soccer Title

KINGSTON Coleman High School, which today is in a position to wrap up the Ulster County Athletic League's cross country championship at the loop's meet in Shokan, can nail down the soccer title Monday when it visits Fallsburgh.

The Statesmen remained undefeated Thursday when they downed winless Pine Bush, 5-1, behind a four goal performance by Chris Bentley, Fallsburgh, who scored twice after Coleman, and whose only defeat came at the hands of the Statesmen, won its seventh by blanking Onteora, 2-0.

In other games, Rondout Valley upset New Paltz, 2-0.

Bentley's four goals and a first period tally by Pete Conti were more than enough to offset the one Pine Bush goal by John Catz. The Statesmen have hit the net 31 times in league play while yielding only five opposition goals.

Onteora held Fallsburgh in check through a scoreless first half, quite an accomplishment for any team on the Comets' field, much less a team in its first year of competition. But the Fallsburgh team managed to score twice after intermission, with Charlie Hinton and Terry Patton the marksman.

Rondout Valley, getting two goals from high scoring Jay Schaeffer, shutout New Paltz after the two teams were scoreless after two periods.

Gardiner Man Is 'Critical'
TOWN OF SHAWANGUNK
A 28-year-old Gardiner resident was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit at St. Luke's Hospital today after sustaining a massive skull fracture and possible internal injuries in a one-car accident on Hoagberghill Road in the Town of Shawangunk Thursday night.

Highland State Police said Wayne V. Latulippe of Box 38, Main Street, Gardiner, was traveling south on Hoagberghill Road when his car ran off the left side of the roadway, crashed through three fences, and came to rest against a fourth fence, traveling a total of 300 yards after it left the road.

Highland State Police said the pickup truck, driven by Deborah A. Monforte, 17, of Walden, was in collision with a late model car driven by Mary E. Doherty, 30, of Wallkill at the intersection of routes 300 and 208 at about 4 p.m.

Miss Monforte was treated and released at St. Luke's Hospital following the mishap. A passenger in the truck, Rosele Romeo of Wallkill, was listed in fair condition at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie today after being transferred there from St. Luke's.

Miss Monforte was issued a summons for failure to yield the right of way.

Elsewhere, a two-car crash at the intersection of Heart's Content Road and Winter Clove Road in the Greene County Town of Cairo Thursday resulted in the hospitalization of one of the drivers.

Colleen Weiss, 26, of Purling was listed in fair condition today at Greene County Memorial Hospital. The driver of the second car, Vincent Amodeo, 77, of Albany, was issued a summons by Leeds State Police for failure to yield the right of way.

Regional Conclave

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Get busy with duties and various errands that await your attention. Make whatever long-time plans concerning home or family that can bring you goodwill and active assistance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Discuss with family ties plans of importance that increase security and harmony at home. Follow your hunches where new interests are concerned. Don't talk too much.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Study some plan with partner for success in the future. Later get out together to some right decisions with kin. Don't amusements that are mutually enjoyable. Be generous.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Ideal day to get results in whatever is of greatest importance to you. Take time to shop for new clothing. Put quality before quantity.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Find rest from tensions and come to a better understanding with good friends and relations at recreation. Show mate you are devoted. Avoid difficult person.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Make needed repairs, improvements at home. Come to right decisions with kin. Don't start or get into any arguments and all works out fine.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Get important tasks done early, then be off with congenial for recreations and hobbies. Contact only those you truly like. Avoid any troublemakers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Go over your budget carefully and make basic improvements. Use your own good judgment and common sense. Reach better understanding with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Think of your own welfare as much as possible now and make big headway both in business and personal life. Go out socially and meet interesting people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Quietly think out how you can gain favor of bigwigs now and advance more quickly thereby. Do some philanthropic work. Be kind and considerate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Ideal day to get together with good friends for a fine time while discussing matters of interest. You get the backing of a stalwart pal just when needed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): An important day to handle public matters cleverly. Contact bigwigs and state your career aims so that they will support them. Advance and make this a valuable day for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Excellent for getting into new interests, making new contacts of worth, gaining new data. Find the right sources of unknown to you before.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those very dynamic young people who can accomplish almost anything desired because there is visualization, intellect and perseverance in the nature, so be sure to give as fine an academic education as you can. There is the ability to look at the overall picture here and then to fit in all the parts, which makes for big success. There could also be a great pianist, violinist, orchestra leader in this chart.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

PERSISTENT: (Q) I am lucky to have wealthy parents. They provide me with an apartment of my own. I am a girl, 18.

Reg and I went together for a little over a year. I thought we had a perfect relationship, but now I see I am not really serious about him.

He still comes to my apartment almost every night, even though I have told him I don't want to see him any more. How can I get him to leave me alone?—He doesn't listen in Louisiana.

(A.) A girl with an apartment of her own is vulnerable to a thick-skinned boy friend. She should be very careful about too-close relationships.

Tell your friend not to come to your apartment anymore. Tell him firmly and clearly so that he cannot misunderstand. If he continues, ask your parents to help you. Ask to return home for a while or to move to another apartment with an unlisted telephone.

When you move, do not tell your former boy friend when or where you are moving. This may be retreating, but it is better than getting into big trouble.

LOVE AT 13: (Q) I don't know if Meg likes me or not, and I am too shy to ask her. I am 13 and she is 11. Please tell me what to do.—In Love in Indiana.

(A.) You do not have to tell Meg you like her or ask her if she likes you. Be friendly with her, talk to her and show her by your actions that you like her.

If she likes you, she will show you by being friendly to you.

"Too bad I didn't bid three no-trump," said South. "Since you had the hearts stopped there was no way for me to lose that contract."

"Too bad you didn't think a little in the play. After the diamond opening your spade game was a cinch," grunted North. It was a rather loud grunt but North was really mad. South had run off several rounds of trumps and then led his singleton heart. East had hopped up with the ace and led another diamond and South had to lose all his three clubs in addition to the heart trick.

Do you see why North was angry? When West showed out on the first lead of trumps, South could have stopped for a moment's thought to see the cinch way to make his contract.

All he had to do was to lead his singleton heart right then and there. East would still take his ace and return a diamond but now South would be able to lead a trump toward dummy's 8-7. East would take his ace of clubs, lead another diamond or just give up.

There would be no way to keep South from getting to dummy with dummy's last trump, whereupon he would be able to discard two of his clubs on the good hearts.

Diary of A Crisis...Nixon Flashes the Command

WASHINGTON (AP) — From his bedroom in the middle of the night, President Nixon ordered the word flashed to U.S. military units around the world: Go to DefCon-3.

With its cryptic militaryese, the message placed the armed forces on alert early Thursday, flexing America's muscle in global politics where miscalculation carries the danger of thermonuclear destruction.

Presidential aides say Nixon ordered the nation's armed forces to "Defense Condition Three" — a general military what he discussed with the secretary of state is unknown, but he apparently relayed word that the Kremlin strongly supported an Egyptian appeal that the Soviet Union and United States send troops to the Middle East to supervise the cease-fire agreement they had inspired.

The United States opposed the idea.

Dobrynin left, but a few hours later his limousine was spotted in the State Department's basement parking garage. It was being used by a lower-level Soviet embassy official to deliver a formal message from Moscow.

Contents of the message, addressed to the President, but handed to Kissinger, haven't been officially released.

The message from Moscow thickened the air of crisis.

Kissinger made another telephone call to the President, placed a call to Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz, summoned his top advisors and sent cables to key embassies in the troubled area.

About six hours after Dobrynin strode into his office, Kissinger left the State Department and headed for the White House.

At his news conference Thursday, Kissinger said the President "at a special meeting of the National Security Council last night, at 3 a.m.," ordered that "certain precautionary measures" be taken.

Sources said that during a four-hour period beginning about 10 p.m., there were meetings in the White House West Wing between Kissinger and officials of the State and Defense departments and CIA.

Kissinger was in constant telephone contact with Nixon. Finally, after he and other senior officials had unanimously agreed to recommend action, he again telephoned the President.

According to sources, Nixon had by then retired to his bedroom and from there the President gave the order for the alert.

The word was quickly dispatched to the National Military Command Center. From there it flashed to units at home and abroad.

Defcon-3 did not put the military on a war footing. It primarily meant leaves were canceled, men were ordered to return to their units and preparations were made to move them out if necessary.

It did have some dramatic aspects.

In Florida, highway patrolmen were told not to halt cars speeding airmen from their residences to Homestead Air Force Base.

Across the Atlantic, the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy was instructed to steam into the Mediterranean.

As the military responded to the alert, a weary Kissinger managed to get a few hours sleep.

Nixon was up earlier than usual, arriving at his Oval Office before dawn. There, over coffee, he conferred with Kissinger before going to the Cabinet Room where congressional leaders had gathered for a briefing.

Seventy minutes later, the grim-faced congressmen left. Newsmen — many of them awakened at 5 a.m. — were waiting to fire a volley of questions.

It was, House Speaker Carl Albert responded, "only a precautionary alert... the emphasis is on diplomacy at this time."

JUDGE SIRICA HONORED — Federal District Court Judge John J. Sirica (R) gestures as he talks with reporters at the Statler Hilton Hotel in Boston, Mass. The judge received a special award for "manifestations of judicial courage" from the American Judges Association, who gave him a standing ovation at a banquet. Judge Sirica told newsmen he was happy to get away from the tapes controversy because, "Some people in Washington blame me for what's going on. But I don't feel responsible for anything." Brief Respite At Camp David

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon spent the night in his mountain retreat, seeking a brief respite between his confrontation with the Soviet Union and a press conference he apparently still planned later today in Washington.

No time has been announced for the news conference, postponed from Thursday night. The President had canceled a planned nationwide address on Wednesday night.

The White House said the Middle East situation prompted both schedule changes.

The President flew to Camp David Thursday afternoon, after the Middle East confrontation began to abate. He went with his wife Pat and daughter Tricia Cox.

At his news conference, the President is expected to face questions on his firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, which triggered the resignations of former Attorney General Elliot Richardson and Deputy Attorney General William French Smith.

The President made his first public appearance in several days Thursday, when he escorted Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to his limousine, with fanfare, as at his mountain retreat, seeking a brief respite between his confrontation with the Soviet Union and a press conference he apparently still planned later today in Washington.

UN Will Supervise Cease-Fire

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The U.N. Security Council agreed Thursday to send troops from small countries to supervise the Middle East cease-fire apparently averting a showdown between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Within hours, U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim ordered forces from Austria, Finland and Sweden to leave immediately for Egypt and begin monitoring the five-day-old truce.

Waldheim called his order an "interim measure," and said the troops would be borrowed from U.N. peace-keeping forces on the Mediterranean island of Cyprus.

The Security Council voted 14-0, with China not participating, for a resolution to create an emergency force to supervise the cease-fire. It also empowered Waldheim to beef up truce teams now in the Middle East until the emergency force is organized.

At the insistence of the United States, the resolution contained a stipulation that the truce forces would not include troops from the big five powers — the United States, the Soviet Union, France, Britain and China.

That stipulation, accepted by the Soviet Union later told the Security Council it would not insist on sending its troops.

The crisis erupted into the open Wednesday when Egyptian President Anwar Sadat requested U.S. and Soviet troops jointly police the fragile cease-fire ordered Monday by the Security Council. The White House quickly rejected the request.

U.S. Armed Forces Continue on Alert

WASHINGTON (AP) — American military forces remained on alert around the world today, although the crisis which precipitated their call to duty appeared over.

There was no indication how long hundreds of thousands of airmen, sailors and troops would remain prepared to move to the Mideast if needed.

Among the units alerted was the 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., which has a prime mission to be sent to crisis points in time of emergency.

Nearly all of the nation's 2.2 million military men and women were alerted to some degree of combat readiness.

About 12 hours after the first troops were summoned from their beds in the predawn hours or called back to their units from leaves at home, the United Nations Security Council voted to send a peacekeeping force to the still-volatile Mideast.

The Soviet Union, the United States, and other major powers were excluded.

Reliable Nixon administration sources said that before the U.N. action they genuinely feared the Soviet Union planned to exploit the shaky Mideast truce by sending in its own peacekeeping force.

Estimates varied, but administration sources and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said they believed at one point that about 1,000 Russian troops were en route to Egypt.

The sources said the Soviet airlift to Syria and Egypt, once involving scores of flights each day, suddenly dwindled to 20 flights on Tuesday and no flights to either country Wednesday.

While some American intelligence analysts wondered Wednesday what happened to the Soviet planes used in the Russian airlift, about a dozen
